Digitized by the Internet Archive
in 2011 with funding from LYRASIS Members and Sloan Foundation

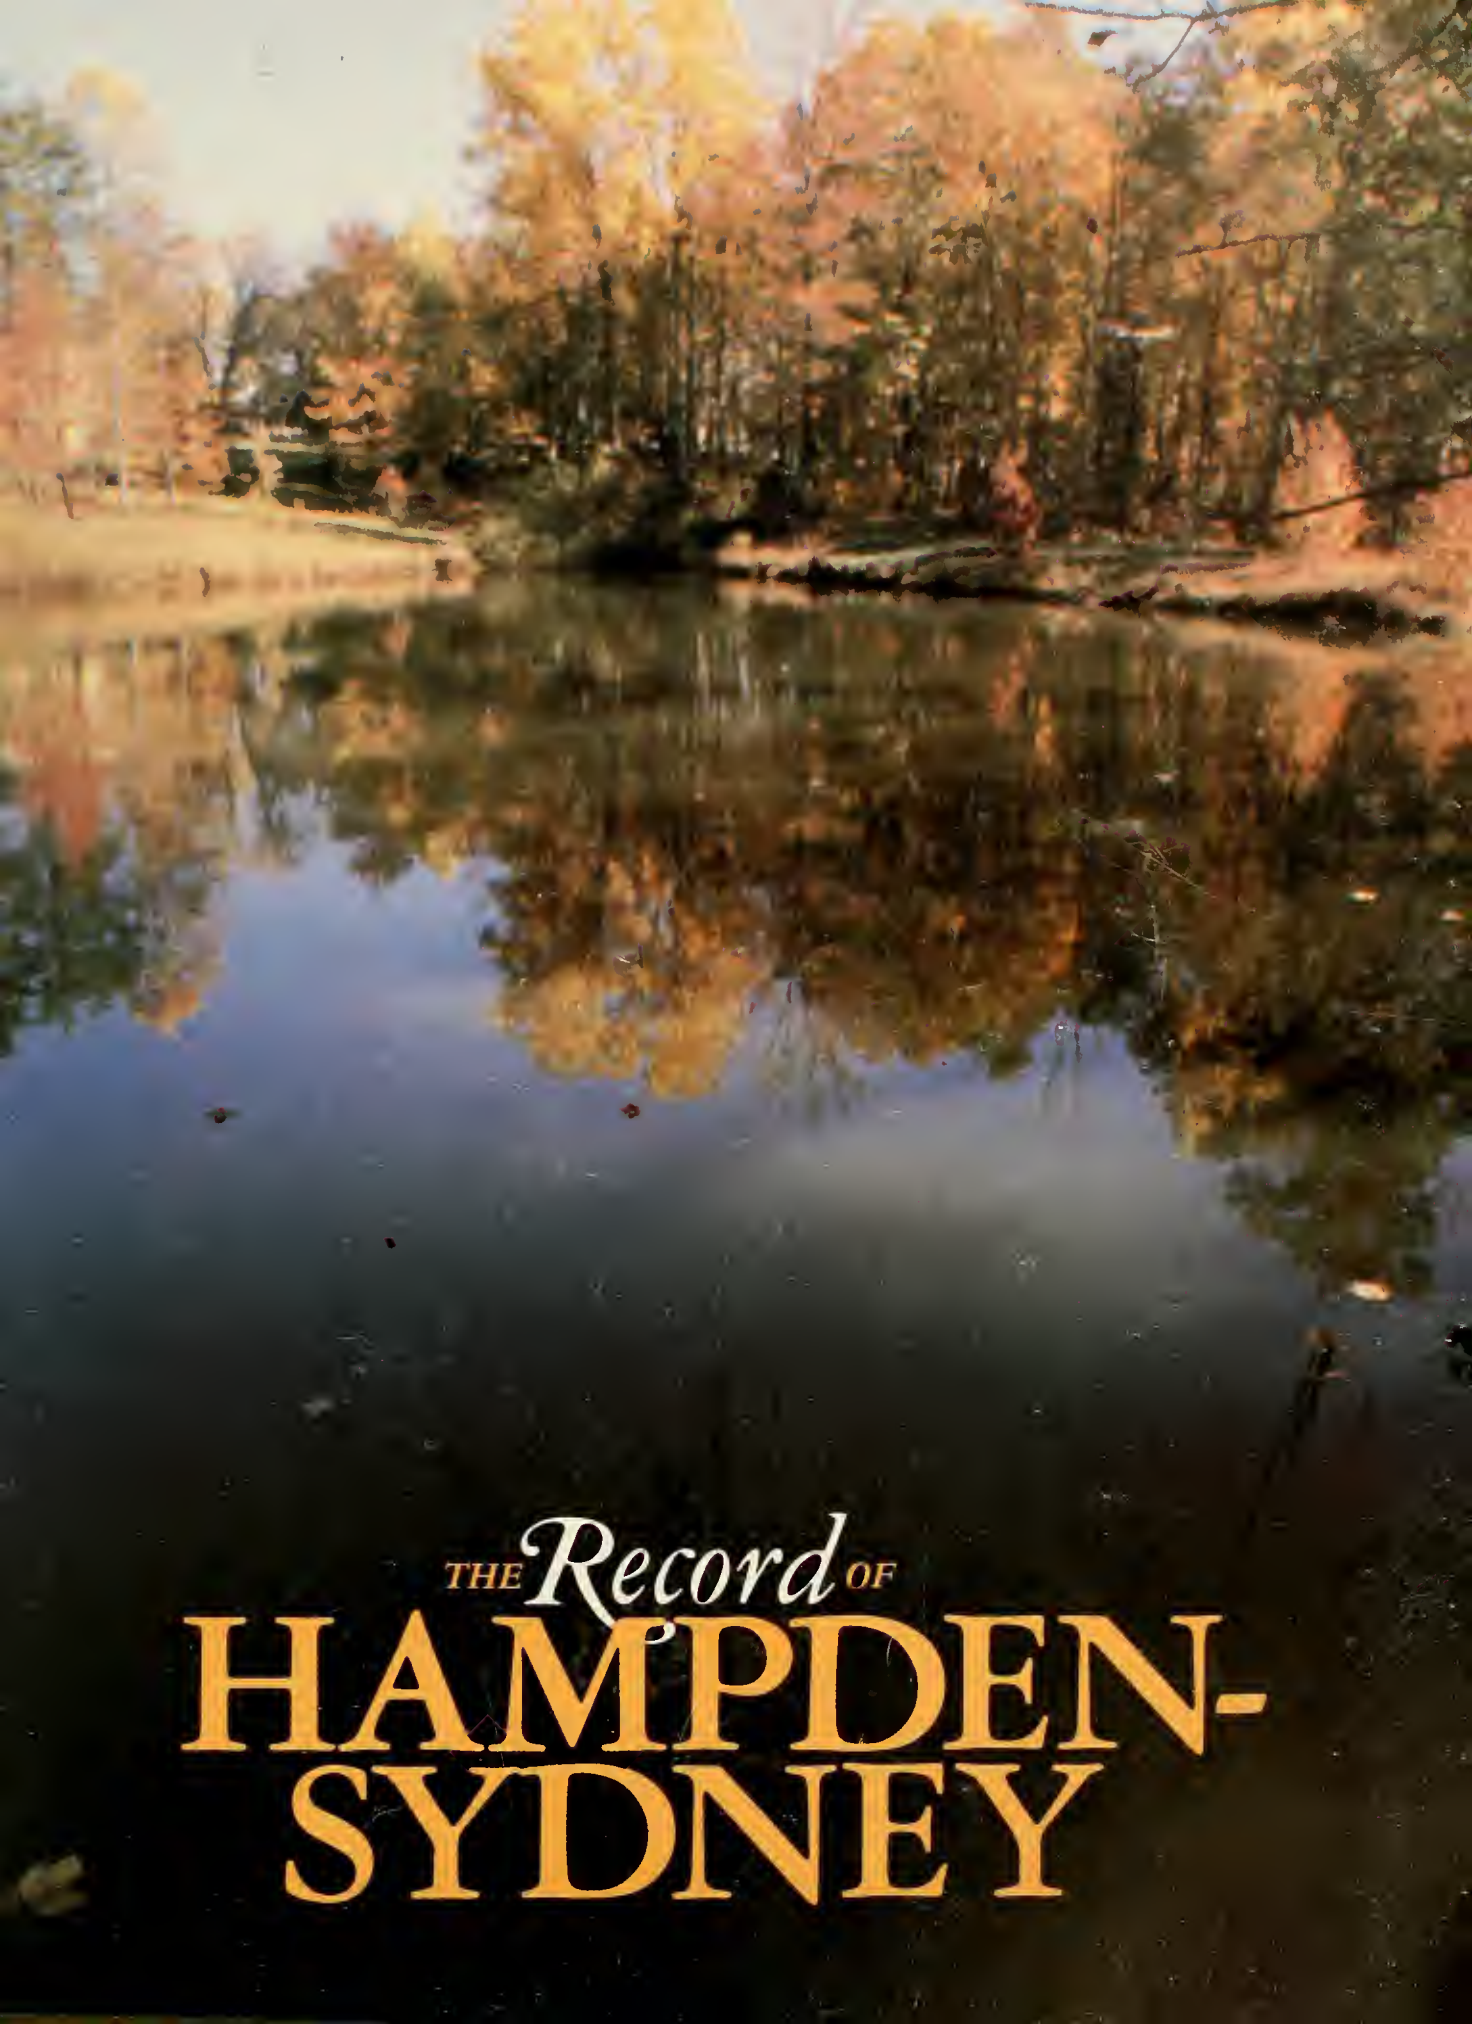
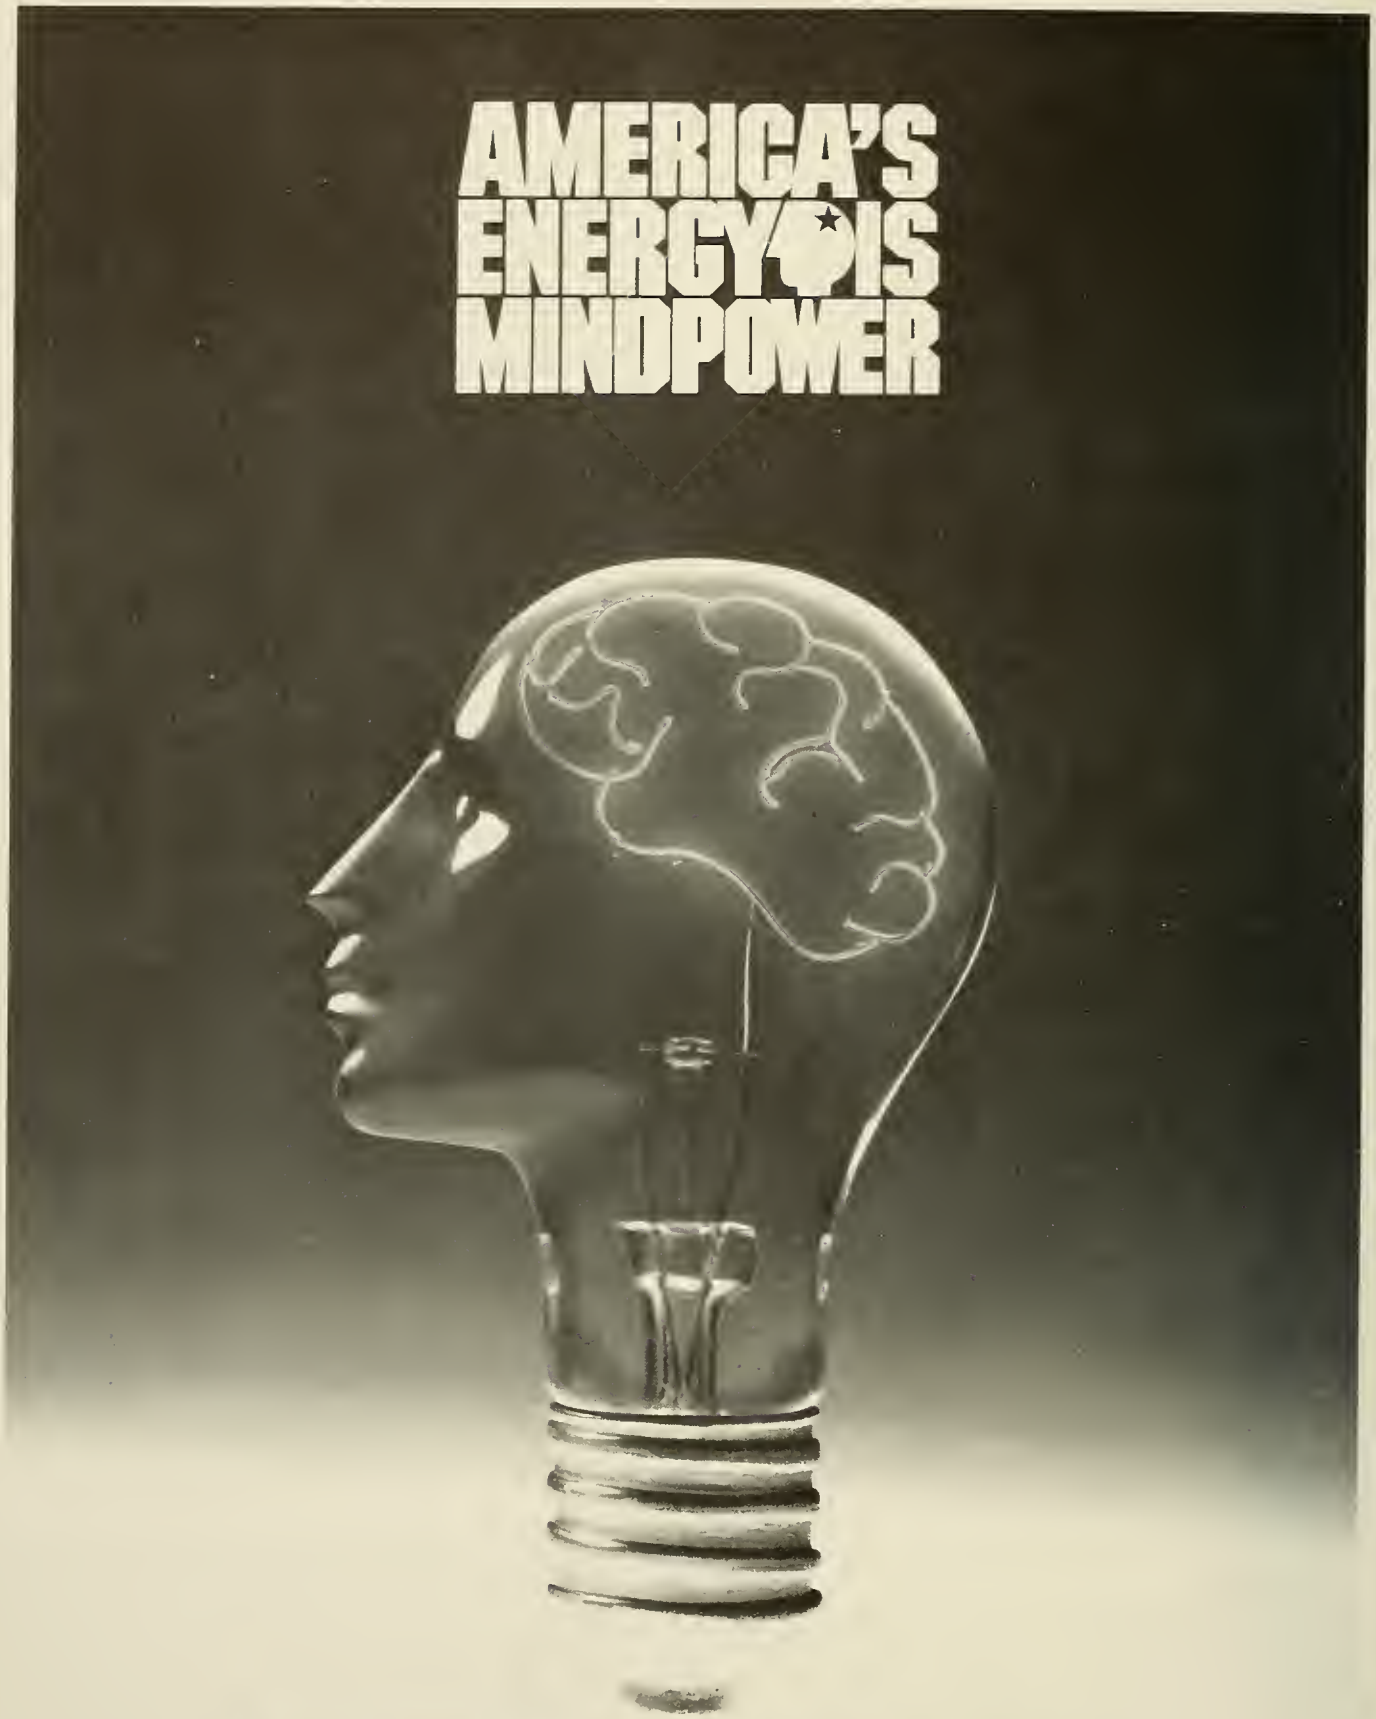
http://www.archive.org/details/recordofhampd5911982hamp



THE Record OF
HAMPDEN-
SYDNEY



MAKE HIGHER EDUCATION YOUR PRIORITY

Support our colleges: They provide our nation's greatest resource.

THE Record OF HAMPDEN-SYDNEY COLLEGE IN VIRGINIA

Volume 59, Number 1 Fall 1982

In This Issue:

In Seats of Power 2
An interview with W. Sydnor Settle '55, Chairman of the Hampden-Sydney Board of Trustees.

But What Exactly Do They Do? 5
In which the life of a Trustee is shown to be more hard work than glamor. Profiles of the men and women who preside over Hampden-Sydney's destiny.

A Good Deal 15
How three alumni helped themselves and the College, too.

Where Football Is Still A Game 16
A bemused observer tastes the heady spectacle of a football crowd on the Hill.

Hampden-Sydney, 1990 18
Orderliness, improvement, and the best we can do for every student who enrolls—these are the goals of the ten-year plan for the College.

On the Hill 20
National rankings for both the Annual Fund and the lacrosse team, and other notes.

Faculty Forum 23
New professors, summer research, and awards.

Class Notes 24

Parting Shots 32
Vanity Fare

THIS ISSUE OF THE RECORD IS DEVOTED TO THE enduring contributions made by the trustees of Hampden-Sydney College. It is a theme too often left unsung: trustees, in the very nature of their work, are held aloof from the day-to-day workings and remote from the public expressions of the life of the College, and their work is easy to take for granted. But like most things we take for granted, their work is vital. Theirs is the responsibility for maintaining the great heritage that their predecessors from 1775 to the present have left them, for seeing that the College becomes and stays the best it can be, and for looking to the future and preparing constructive plans to preserve the College into its third century. On page 2, chairman of the Board W. Sydnor Settle '55 reveals what it is like to be a trustee; on page 5 we give profiles of each of the trustees; on page 18 the Plan for the Eighties, "the most important decision ever made by the Board," is explained. Let us hope that this notice of their achievements makes up for the years of faithful work, modestly performed. We all owe them a very great debt indeed.

WE RUN OUT OF PLATITUDES WHEN GREAT men die. Hampden-Sydney lost two great sons this year: one a leader in the world of business, Benjamin A. Soyars '40, and the other a champion of the affairs of the mind, Dr. Robert T. Hubard '35.

Ben Soyars' smile was legendary. He always spoke his mind, and was usually right. He had in abundance, as Clifford H. Goldsmith, his fellow-worker at Philip Morris, pointed out, "that enviable virtue of common sense. The 'miracles' performed under his leadership were, to him, only what might be expected of any good operation. He once said, 'All of a sudden, we manufactured 70 billion cigarettes and then we were a big company'." Ben was like that: there was no surprise at success, only dismay at the excuses that stood in its way. As a trustee of Hampden-Sydney from 1975 to 1982, his solid counsel and undismayed confidence in a good plan often reminded us that the task of leadership is not to explain or expound, not to worry or wonder, but to lead. His comprehensive principle was: find the right thing to do, and do it. If Ben Soyars has taught us that, the right things we do in the years to come will be his enduring memorial.

About Dr. Hubard much has already been said. He taught us courtliness, wisdom, and quiet strength. He was the sort of man who, once met, was always a friend. His love for Hampden-Sydney was boundless and found many avenues of expression. The College gave him a full life and a happy home; by his example of genteelness and courage, as much as by his contributions of concern and service, he in turn enriched and ennobled the life of the College.

It is men like these that make Hampden-Sydney worth writing about, worth preserving; may their tribe increase.

On the cover: Chalgrove Lake takes on the colors of sky and changing leaves. Photograph by Ron Stern.

Published by Hampden-Sydney College, Hampden-Sydney, Virginia 23943.

Richard McClintock, Editor
J. Sheppard Haw III '78, Associate Editor
Thomas A. Robinson '83, Assistant Editor

W. Sydnor Settle '55, chairman of Hampden-Sydney's Board of Trustees, in the office of his New York law firm.

In Seats of Power

An interview with W. Sydnor Settle '55, Chairman of the Hampden-Sydney Board of Trustees.

By J. Sheppard Haw III '78

SYD SETTLE LIKES A CHALLENGE. THIS COLD DECEMber morning he has cleared the appointment calendar at his Wall Street law firm to meet with Harry Easterly, director of the United States Golf Association, at the U.S.G.A.'s headquarters in Far Hills, New Jersey. Threading his BMW through the rolling New Jersey countryside, Settle confides that the U.S.G.A. is considering whether to move Golf House, its headquarters, to Atlanta because of space requirements. Settle believes that Golf House, the national golf museum for the U.S.G.A. as well as its administrative headquarters, is an important community asset, and wants to see it remain in New Jersey. He is counting on support from executives representing a number of major corporations based in New Jersey whom he has asked to attend the early morning conference.

Later in the day, during an hour-long commute to the Battery Park Plaza law office of Simpson Thacher & Bartlett, of which he is a senior member, Settle speaks of being on "the cutting edge of issues," "of thriving on stress," and of enjoying "the tough problems that provide a real challenge." It is not boasting, but rather the easy conversation of a successful man who approaches his work aggressively. That evening he will fly to a midwestern city to review progress on the construction of a multi-billion-dollar nuclear power plant being financed by one of his clients. A tightly scheduled return flight to New York assures his presence at a key meeting the next day.

As Chairman of the Hampden-Sydney Board of Trustees, Settle has found yet another challenge: guiding his alma mater through the 1980's —a period which, because of rising inflation and a shrinking student application pool, will provide a difficult test for all private colleges in America.

TEN YEARS AGO William Sydnor Settle '55, a native of Lawrenceville, Virginia, a 1957 graduate of the University of Virginia School of Law, and a hard-working member of a prestigious New York law firm, was asked to join the Hampden-Sydney Board of Trustees by then-Chairman Lewis C. Chewning. Settle describes it as "one of the most exciting things I have ever been asked to do: the education of young people to progressively higher levels of accomplishment is the only way any society can advance. Short of becoming a professional educator, the best and most rewarding way to understand and contribute to the process of education is to serve on a college or university board of trustees."

Now 48 years old and sitting in the chair once held by men like Chewning, S. Douglas Fleet, and Frank S. Johns, Settle derives a great deal of satisfaction from his trusteeship. He relishes "working with the administration and all of the board members, grappling with issues, seeking productive solutions, and knowing that in some small way I can influence the future of the College." When Settle talks about the College, his emotions run deep. In his view, " a college founded by men like Patrick Henry, James Madison, William Cabell, and Nathaniel Venable, has an incredibly rich tradition, and the fact that it has survived and prospered for over 200 years is evidence of great institutional quality."

"You can't be around Hampden-Sydney without feeling good about the enterprise," reflects Settle. "I'm constantly amazed by the depth of dedication I encounter even among trustees who aren't graduates of the College. Bill Leachman was a prime example. Bill didn't attend Hampden-Sydney, but I'm sure no trustee ever loved it more. When he came to meetings, he'd start to smile as soon as he got out of his car; he enjoyed every minute he spent on campus and every minute he spent on Hampden-Sydney business."

THE BOARD HAS ALMOST twice as many alumni (23) as non-alumni (12) trustees. Settle says "the alumni of the College are exceptionally dedicated and are almost always happy to serve on the Board. Recruiting trustees who are non-alumni, particularly those who live outside of the Virginias and the Carolinas, is sometimes a different matter. The College has historically done a poor job of projecting its image beyond Virginia and its border states. This is rapidly changing and the College is engaged in a determined effort to project a national image. When we occasionally encounter reluctance on the part of a prospective trustee to serve on the Board, we ask the candidate to visit the College. That invariably clinches the deal. The campus, the academic atmosphere, and the visible quality of the total enterprise would sell anyone on Hampden-Sydney."

YOU CAN'T BE AROUND HAMPDEN-SYDNEY WITHOUT FEELING GOOD ABOUT THE ENTERPRISE.

Over the last several years, the Board has had the foresight to recruit and add to its membership a growing number of influential and distinguished men who are not Hampden-Sydney graduates. Such men have greatly broadened the Board's geographic influence: Les Ballard, president of Ballard Exploration Company in Houston; Edward Campbell, president of Newport News Shipbuilding; James Coleman, president of the Coleman Development Company of New Orleans; Edwin Kennedy, a senior partner in the New York firm of Lehman Brothers Kuhn Loeb, Inc., and Rodney Mitchell, president of Tallasi Management, Inc. of New York. Settle is quick to point out that although this geographic distribution makes for a healthy Board, the College has not forgotten its Virginia origins.

"The College is richly endowed with Virginians of very high caliber, as well as Carolinians and West Virginians. It would be a mistake for the College not to maintain strong Board representation from those areas."

"The Board Affairs Committee, which screens all the candidates and serves as a nominating committee to the Board," explains Settle, "is first and foremost concerned with intellectual capacity. We want people with first-class minds —people who are doers, with a track record of accomplishment or expertise in education, industry, finance, law, construction, religion, or public relations."

"Since we are looking for people of accomplishment," reasons Settle, "it follows that we are dealing with members of the establishment. These are people who not only have financial means and financial involvements, but who also recognize wealth as a raw material — a means to an end. One of our trustees went so far as to say recently that 'the only money he ever really enjoyed was that which he intelligently gave away'."

The trustees' gifts are meaningful ones. Each year their unanimous participation in the Annual Fund is an example for all alumni to follow; in the 1981-82 Annual Fund Campaign year, they challenged alumni to raise their pledges, promising to match dollar for dollar all new money given by alumni to the Annual Fund. This challenge allowed the annual telethon to reach the largest total ever, with about $43,000 of new money pledged.

Equally important are the trustees' connections with the mainstream of American business. Their knowledge of corporations and foundations is extremely valuable when the College is preparing to approach an organization with a proposal.

"It is the hope," says Settle, "that a trustee will contact the President and identify a contact at a corporation or foundation who can lend support to the proposal. This is very exciting to the Chief Executive Officer: just a little bit of an entrée lets him come in with twice the enthusiasm and conviction that he can bring something back for Hampden-Sydney."

ONE MIGHT CONclude that the Board's involvement with Hampden-Sydney is predominantly financial. Settle dismisses those thoughts quickly. "Our trustees want to contribute to the College's intellectual quality, they want to be involved in decision-making, they want the College to set high standards, and to move them gradually higher year by year by demanding more of the faculty, more of the student body, more of the alumni, more of the administration, and more of the trustees."

"The Board's most important duty," Settle claims, "is assuring the continuity of good leadership on the campus. Paradoxically, this is the function trustees least want to perform. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes used to say that if he were a private citizen, he would fear a lawsuit more than anything else he could imagine." According to Settle, "that's how boards feel about a change in presidents, regardless of the reason for the change. At times like that, to paraphrase Joe Louis, 'the board can run but it can't hide'. Unless there is a consensus candidate already on the payroll of the College, its trustees —with the help of the faculty, the administration and the rest of the College community — must invest enormous amounts of time and energy in the search for and recruitment of a successor who can enable the institution to keep up its momentum, or reestablish momentum if it has been lost."

Settle (left) confers at the summer Board meeting with trustee Kyle Baldwin '35 of Farmville.

In 1977, the Hampden-Sydney Board met and discharged that duty, with the hiring and election of Josiah Bunting III. Settle was instrumental in bringing Bunting to Hampden-Sydney. He knew of Bunting's work at Briarcliff, interviewed him initially, and brought him before the search committee and the full Board. "It was not a hard sell," says Settle in response to a question about his influence on the decision. "There was total agreement on the part of the Board, the faculty, and the alumni, that we would not settle for less than an outstanding leader. We kept at it until we found such a man, and when Si was identified he was obviously the man for that season. In fact, Si is a man for any season."

SETTLE BELIEVES THAT our trustees want to do more than just keep the ship afloat between presidents. They want to be positive contributors to progress. One area in which the Board has been particularly active is in the development of the College's Long-Range Plan.

"Adoption of the Long-Range Plan may have been the single most important decision the Board has ever made," says Settle. "When it had been made, after long and careful deliberation, the Board went away feeling that it had launched a powerful program to put the College in the acknowledged forefront of American educational institutions."

The Long-Range Plan, or Plan for the Eighties, is an all-encompassing design to move the College forward on all fronts. Changes called for by the Plan include increased compensation for faculty members and funding for research grants; larger scholarship funds to hold student tuition costs in check; a strengthening of library resources for undergraduate research; the addition and renovation of several buildings (most notably dormitories); and increases in the endowment sufficient to enable the College to withstand the ebb and flow of America's cyclical economy.

Settle's appetite for the challenge ahead is obvious. Pacing the floor of his office, he talks with enthusiasm about the Plan. "All of these things add up to a very costly program requiring a persistent and dedicated approach to fund-raising throughout the 80's. As we enter this period of intensive demand and industry, I feel fortunate, almost beyond belief, to have a faculty, administration and Board as well-balanced and capable as they are. Without question the College is up to the challenge."

But What Exactly Do They Do?

In which the life of a Trustee is shown to be more hard work than glamor.

Profiles of the men and women who preside over Hampden-Sydney's destiny.

COLONEL WILLIAM CABELL OF UNION HILL, A Founding Trustee of Hampden-Sydney (and father of William H. Cabell, class of 1796, who later become governor of Virginia), wrote one day in his diary, "No one will ever know how much time I have given Hampden-Sydney!"

Today's trustees no doubt agree with Cabell, who, among his other duties as trustee, was in charge of Hampden-Sydney's second great fund-raising campaign, the state-authorized Lottery of 1777. There is more hard work than glamor involved in the job; far from being an honorary position, with perquisites like meetings in fabulous resort spots and fat little checks after every attendance, a trusteeship at the College carries with it real responsibility and hands-on homework.

But what exactly do they do? The General Assembly of Virginia, in the Charter granted in 1783 (after the turmoil of the War had settled down), defined the duties of the Board. The Charter constituted the trustees and the president (who is ex officio a member of the Board) "as a body politic and corporate...who shall have perpetual succession and a common seal: ...they and their successors...shall be able to possess, purchase, receive, and retain to them and their successor forever any lands, tenements, rents, goods, and chattels...for the use of the said College; ...to make and establish such bylaws, rules and ordinances, not being contrary to the Constitution or laws of this Commonwealth, as by them shall be thought necessary for the good order and government of the professors, masters, and students of the said College." This authorization means that trustees are responsible for the acquisition, maintenance, and replacement of building and equipment; that they can initiate law-suits and be sued on behalf of the College; that they have the responsibility (delegated in practice to the officers of the College) of setting the standards of academic and social behavior for the whole community. They are responsible for fund-raising and maintenance of the endowment. They build the College's future; under this head falls the recently completed Plan for the 80's which occupied so much of their time.

The activities of a trustee at Hampden-Sydney include a lot of homework, in addition to the meetings. Before every meeting, and throughout the year, great packets of information go out to the trustees to keep them abreast of decisions made and about to be made. Trustees are expected to serve as ambassadors for the College in their hometowns, introducing the president to people who might wish to help the College, watching over the media coverage of the College, talking to prospective students and their parents, watching for opportunities to help the College. They are constantly being called on as resources of talent.

I'M CONSTANTLY AMAZED BY THE DEPTH OF DEDICATION I ENCOUNTER EVEN AMONG TRUSTEES WHO AREN'T GRADUATES OF THE COLLEGE.

—W. Sydnor Settle '55
Chairman of the Board of Trustees

TRUSTEE PROFILES

William Sydnor Settle '55
Senior Partner, Simpson, Thacher, & Bartlett

Chairman of the College's Board of Trustees since his appointment in July of 1980. Following his graduation from Hampden-Sydney, Settle attended the University of Virginia School of Law. In 1957, he joined the Wall Street Law firm of Simpson, Thacher, & Bartlett. A resident of New Vernon, New Jersey, Settle was elected to the Hampden-Sydney Board of Trustees in 1972 and was appointed its vice-chairman in 1979. He is a member of the American Bar Association, the New York Bar Association and the Morris County Transportation Board. He is also a director of the International Silver Company and of the SBN Gas Company.

JEAN RAEBURN, N.Y.

Mary Ross Scott Reed

Mrs. Reed serves as secretary and treasurer of the Board of Trustees. One of only three women ever elected to the Board of Trustees, assuming her post in 1973, Mrs. Reed is the widow of the late William T. Reed, Jr. '25, himself a trustee from 1947 to 1960. She currently sits on the Commission of the Science Museum of Virginia, a position to which she was appointed in 1970 by Governor Linwood Holton. In the past she has been director of both the Garden Club of Virginia and the Garden Club of America. Her dedication to the cause of conservation has won her the DeLacy Gray Memorial Medal and a certificate of award for conservation. Mrs. Reed has five children, of whom two are alumni: William T. Reed III '56 and Frederic Scott Reed '63.

Henry C. Spalding, Jr. '60
Executive Vice President, Scott & Stringfellow, Inc.

Spalding is vice-chairman of the Board of Trustees. A magna cum laude graduate of Hampden-Sydney, Spalding is a member of ODK and Phi Beta Kappa. He serves as a director of Investors Savings and Loan Association as well as serving on the Board of Governors of the Commonwealth Club. He has served as the president of the Hampden-Sydney Alumni Association and currently serves on the Executive, Finance, and Budget Committees of the Board of Trustees. He and his wife, Kaye Culver Brinkley, have three children.

Lee Sanford Ainslie, Jr.
Headmaster of Episcopal High School in Alexandria

A former headmaster of Virginia Episcopal School in Lynchburg, he is on the Faculty Affairs Committee of the Board. Ainslie's education includes a B.A. from the University of North Carolina, where he was a Morehead Scholar, and graduate work at American University, George Washington University, the University of Virginia, and Lynchburg College. A native of Huntington, West Virginia, Ainslie, 44, has taught Latin and English at the prep school level as well as coaching varsity basketball and tennis. He belongs to the National Association of Independent Schools, the Kiwanis Club, and the English Speaking Union. He is married to Sharon Quinn; they have three children.

TRUSTEE PHOTOGRAPHS, TAKEN AT THE SUMMER BOARD MEETING, BY RON STERN

TRUSTEE PROFILES

Thomas N. Allen '60
President of East Coast Oil Corporation of Richmond
Allen was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and Omicron Delta Kappa while at Hampden-Sydney. He continued his education at the London School of Economics and Political Science and at the University of Virginia School of Law. Occupational background includes work as a management consultant with Booz, Allen and Hamilton, New York, and as an account executive with Sullivan, Stauffer, Colwell and Bayles Advertising, also in New York. He is a director of the Boys' Club of Richmond, past president of the Society of Gasoline Marketers of America, and a member of the Young Presidents' Organization. As chairman of the Student Affairs Committee of the Board, Allen works closely with the Dean of Students and the Student Government officers.

Frederick W. Beck, Jr. '38
Retired president of Beck Motor Company, Inc., of Petersburg
Beck received an MBA degree from the University of Pennsylvania in 1941. He serves on the Student Affairs Committee of the Board. A veteran of World War II, Beck rose to the rank of Lt. Commander, was awarded a Purple Heart, and retired with a Navy Unit Commendation. He has served as president of the Petersburg Chamber of Commerce, the Virginia Automobile Dealers Association, and the Appomattox Basin Industrial Development Corporation. Last year Beck was chairman of the Petersburg-Dinwiddie County Airport & Industrial Authority; he is a member of the Petersburg Advisory Board for United Virginia Bank. In 1975, Beck received the Time Magazine Quality Dealer Award. He and his wife, Mary Cox, have 2 sons and a daughter.

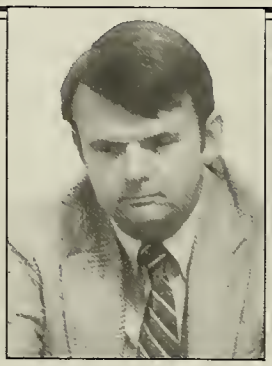
Andrew Leslie Ballard
President of Ballard Exploration Company, Inc.
A former president of the Kilroy Company of Texas, Inc., an independent oil and gas exploration company, Ballard is a native of San Antonio. He graduated from Rice University, where he was the recipient of the Graham Baker Studentship Award for academic excellence and a Schlumberger Scholarship. He was a 2nd Lieutenant in the Army Corps of Engineers. Ballard's directorships include the Independent Petroleum Association of America, the Houston Theatre Under the Stars, and the Petroleum Club of Houston. He is a past member of the Houston YMCA Board of Management and is presently a consultant to the Protestant Episcopal Church Council of the Diocese of Texas. Ballard serves on the Development Committee of the Board. He and his wife, Carol Chiles, live in Houston. They have a daughter.

Raymond R. Bottom '51
Chairman and Editor, The Daily Press, Inc.
Bottom, a member of the Board's Faculty Affairs Committee, serves as vice president of Hampton Roads Broadcasting Corporation along with his other positions with The Daily Press. He is a former president of the Newport News Rotary Club and is a director of First City Bank of Newport News. A colonel in the Air Force Reserve, Bottom received a second bachelor of science degree from the University of Virginia.

TRUSTEE PROFILES

Royal E. Cabell, Jr. '43
Senior partner in the Richmond law firm of Cabell, Moncure & Carneal.
Cabell, who graduated from the University of Virginia School of Law in 1948, is an expert in taxes and estates, and was instrumental in the formation of a deferred giving program at the College. He serves on the Executive Committee and Student Affairs Committee of the Board. Cabell is a director of the C. F. Sauer Company; Owens, Minor & Bodeker, Inc., the Coastal Lumber Company, Dominion Leaf Tobacco, Inc., and Brounson Equipment Company, Inc. He is also on the board of Malaysian and Indonesian corporations and of two charitable trust foundations. He is secretary of the Richmond Friends of Opera and a director of the Richmond Cerebral Palsy Center. He and his wife, Kathleen Buchanan, have 2 sons, both alumni, and a daughter.

Edward J. Campbell
President and chief executive officer of Newport News Shipbuilding, Inc., a division of Tenneco and the largest private shipyard in the world
Previously he held corporate positions in Tenneco's J. I. Case Company, lastly serving as executive vice president for the North American region before moving to Newport News. Campbell, 54, holds a B.S. in mechanical engineering and an MBA from Northwestern University. He serves on the Faculty Affairs Committee of the Board. Last May he was elected chairman of the Shipbuilders Council of America. Campbell is a board member of the First & Merchants Corporation and the National Maritime Council. He is also a national trustee of the Foundry Educational Foundation.



George B. Cartledge, Jr. '63
President, Grand Piano & Furniture Company
Cartledge has served on the boards of the Better Business Bureau, Roanoke Chamber of Commerce, and Roanoke Merchants Association; he has served as president of Downtown Roanoke, Inc. A 1963 graduate of Hampden-Sydney and a member of Eta Sigma Phi honorary classics fraternity, Cartledge sits on the Board's Executive Committee. Cartledge and his wife, Mary Ann, have two children. Their son George III is a freshman at Hampden-Sydney.

James J. Coleman, Jr.
Chairman of International Tank Terminals, Ltd., president of Coleman Development Company, Inc., and a partner in the New Orleans law firm of Coleman, Sutrey, Thomson, Meyer & Jurisich.
His education includes a bachelor's degree from Princeton, graduate study at Oxford, and a law degree from Tulane. He is on the Development Committee and the Coeducational Study Committee of the Board. An active worker for civic improvements in New Orleans, Coleman served on the board of the city's Better Business Bureau and Chamber of Commerce, helping to institute a plan of growth for New Orleans through the year 2000. Coleman has served or is serving on the board of the Louisiana Council for Music and Performing Arts, as first vice president of the New Orleans Museum of Art, as secretary and treasurer of the New Orleans Philharmonic Symphony Society.

TRUSTEE PROFILES

Norwood H. Davis, Jr. '63
President and chief executive officer of Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Virginia

Davis, a graduate of the University of Virginia School of Law in 1966, and of the University of Virginia's Colgate Darden Graduate School of Business Administration in 1975, serves on the Development Committee of the Board. A Richmond native, Davis is a past chairman of the Metropolitan Richmond Chamber of Commerce and past president of the Hampden-Sydney Alumni Association. He was included in the 1972 edition of "Who's Who in American Politics" and has been named one of the Outstanding Young Men in America.

J. B. Fuqua
Chairman of the Board of Fuqua Industries, Inc.

Fuqua, who serves on the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees, has served four terms in the Georgia Legislature. The Prince Edward County native heads—and built from the ground up—an eclectic conglomerate which owns trucking lines, distributes steel and petroleum products, operates movie theatres and photofinishing plants, makes garden equipment and sporting goods, and runs several farm retail outlets. The Atlanta-based conglomerate controlled by Fuqua boasts annual sales of more than 2 billion dollars. In October of 1980 Fuqua gave $300,000 to the College for the John Brooks Fuqua Computer Center.

Edwin A. Deagle, Jr.
Deputy Director for International Relations at the Rockefeller Foundation in New York

He is an honors graduate of the United States Military Academy, Class of 1960, and served with distinction in the U.S. Army until 1972. He also graduated with honors from Harvard University's J. F. Kennedy School of Government with a master's degree in public administration in 1966 and a Ph.D. in political economy and government in 1970. He is an active member of the Democratic Party, and has served in several presidential campaigns. He is a member c. the Council on Foreign Relations, treasurer and secretary of Project Green Hope in New York City, and a special advisor to the President of the National Defense University. He is on the Faculty Affairs Committee and the Energy Committee at Hampden-Sydney.

Ernest P. Gates '47
Senior Judge of the Twelfth Judicial Circuit of Virginia

Gates serves on both the Budget-Audit Committee and the Student Affairs Committee of the Board. An ODK graduate of Hampden-Sydney, Gates received his law degree from the Washington & Lee University School of Law in 1950. The 57-year-old native of Chesterfield is a past president of the Association of Commonwealth's Attorneys of Virginia and has served on the Council of the Virginia State Bar and its executive committee. A member of the Virginia and American Bar Associations, Gates is vice chairman of the Council on Criminal Justice of the Commonwealth of Virginia, serving as the representative of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Virginia. He is married to Virginia Yonce. All 3 of their sons graduated from Hampden-Sydney.

TRUSTEE PROFILES

John L. Gibson II
President, Dominion National Bank of Tidewater
A one-time senior executive officer of the old National Bank of Commerce (now Virginia National Bank), Gibson founded the Dominion National Bank in Norfolk. He served in the U.S. Naval Reserve in World War II and the Korean War and taught English at William and Mary before entering the banking profession. He belongs or has belonged to twenty-seven different civic organizations and is responsible for instituting several major cultural institutions in Norfolk. He and his wife have one son, John, who graduated from Hampden-Sydney in 1982.

Charles M. Guthridge '68
Chairman and chief executive officer of COL-DRA Corporation in Richmond, Virginia
Since his graduation, he has been the president of the General Alumni Association, vice-chairman of the Hampden-Sydney Bicentennial Commission, and president of the Hampden-Sydney Club in Richmond. He is currently chairman of the Board's Coeducational Study Committee and is on the Faculty Affairs Committee. Mr. Guthridge has also been an active civic leader in the Central Richmond Association, the United Givers Fund, and the YMCA of Richmond.

W. Robert Grafton
Certified Public Accountant
Grafton, a partner in the Washington office of Arthur Andersen and Company, has served as a National Director of the National Association of Accountants and is a member of the Budget-Audit Committee of the Board. He is a 1963 graduate of West Virginia University. Mr. Grafton is on the Board of Sponsors for the Business School of the College of William and Mary, and has served as the chairman of the Professional Firms Committee for the Washington United Way Campaign. He lives in Potomac, Maryland.

J. Bruce James '53
Vice President, Virginia Landmark Corporation
Mr. James, a member of Chi Phi fraternity at Hampden-Sydney, served as president of his senior class. He works with Virginia Landmark Corporation, a statewide realty firm in Richmond, where he is a member of the St. Stephen's Church Vestry. He and his wife, Jane, have three children. James serves on the Board's Student Affairs Committee.

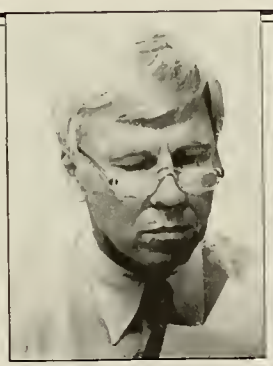
TRUSTEE PROFILES

Edwin L. Kennedy
Senior managing director of the international investment firm of Lehman Brothers Kuhn Loeb Incorporated, and a managing partner of that firm's energy department

Kennedy is a graduate of Ohio University; he did graduate work at Ohio State University and the Harvard School of Business Administration. He continues to be active in education as a Director of the Ohio University Fund, and as a trustee at Hiram College, at Juniata College, and at Hampden-Sydney, where he is a member of the Finance Committee. Kennedy is a member of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, of the American Institute of Mining Metallurgists and Petroleum Engineers, and of the American Petroleum Institute; he is past president of the Ohio University Alumni Association. He lives in New Vernon, New Jersey and Calabogie, Ontario.

David N. Martin '52
Chairman of the Martin Agency in Richmond

A member of Kappa Sigma fraternity, Martin was chairman of Hampden-Sydney's Field House Campaign, and is now on the Development Committee of the Board. Martin has been a resident of Richmond since 1940. While associated with Cargill, Wilson & Acree advertising agency he was named Vice President in charge of client services. At the age of 31, Martin was named the Outstanding Young Man of 1961 by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. He has also been selected as Richmond's "Ad Man of the Year." He founded his own advertising agency in 1960. Martin also is a board member of the Richmond Memorial Hospital on the Richmond Eye Hospital. He is married to Charlotte Louise Williams; they have four children.



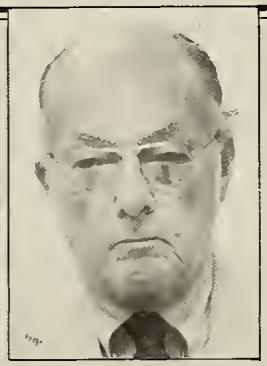
Robert W. King, Jr. '56
Partner in the Charlotte law firm of Moore and Van Allen

King serves on the Executive Committee and is Chairman of the Board Affairs Committee of the Board. A Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Hampden-Sydney, King received his law degree from the University of North Carolina in 1959, where he served as associate editor of the North Carolina Law Review and was a member of the Order of the Coif. A native of Wilson, North Carolina, King has served as president of the Mecklenburg County Bar Association. He is married to the former Ann Durham Lancaster; they have two children.

Dr. Richard A. Michaux '34
Retired Surgeon, Richmond

Besides the distinction of sitting on Hampden-Sydney's Board of Trustees, Michaux also sits on the Board of Directors of the Medical College of Virginia, from which he graduated in 1937, and has served as MCV's alumni president. Michaux has been listed in Who's Who in the South and Southwest and in American Men of Medicine. From 1942 to 1943 Michaux served in the Army Medical Corps with the rank of Captain. A native of Richmond, he has been involved with the Country Club of Virginia, the Commonwealth Club, Judian Creek Youth and Community Club, and the Richmond Area American Cancer Society. He and his wife Julia Gray have four nephews who attended Hampden-Sydney.

TRUSTEE PROFILES



Rodney B. Mitchell
President, Tallasi Management, Inc. New York

A member of the National Republican Senatorial Trust and supporter of the Republican party, Mitchell attended Harvard University, and in 1971 he founded Tallasi Management, Inc., a registered investment corporation that manages corporate pension funds. Mitchell has three children.

Jacquellin Boykin Norment '38
President of Norment Industries, Inc., Montgomery, Alabama

Norment serves on the Development Committee of the Board. He is a member of the Montgomery Business Committee for the Arts. He is also a board member of the George Wheeler Memorial Fund, and chairman of the Comprehensive Alcoholic Program, Inc. Norment belongs to the Montgomery Country Club and the Montgomery Kiwanis Club.

W. Kemp Norman, Jr.
Retired Founding Partner, Williams Crane & Rigging, Inc.

An avid fisherman, hunter, and traveller, Norman serves on the Board's Development Committee. He attended the University of Virginia and served in the Marine Corps during the Korean War. He and his wife Susan have a daughter and a son, Kemp III, who is in the class of 1982.

Robert Richardson '48
Partner, Richardson & Hancock

Richardson, a member of the Board's Development Committee, received his legal training at the University of Virginia and entered private practice in 1941. He served for six years, from 1953 to 1959, as a member of the West Virginia House of Delegates. Richardson and his wife, Elizabeth, have six children.

TRUSTEE PROFILES

John B. Sartain '65
Economist, Sartain and DeSpain
Sartain, valedictorian of his graduating class, earned his master's degree in economics from Southern Methodist University in 1970. He currently serves on the Board of Directors of Central Business Bank in Dallas, Texas. He served on the Congressional Joint Economic Committee from 1978 to 1979, and also served as a member of the Board of Directors of the Park Cities Rotary Club from 1979 to 1980. Sartain is a member of the Student Affairs Committee of Hampden-Sydney College's Board of Trustees. He resides in Dallas with his wife, Merrily Thornton, and their three children.

Paul S. Trible '67
United States Congressman, First District of Virginia
A graduate of Washington & Lee University Law School, Trible served as a law clerk in the U.S. District Court for Eastern Virginia before becoming an assistant U.S. Attorney for the Eastern District of Virginia. In 1974, Trible was appointed Commonwealth's Attorney for Essex County. In his work as a federal and state prosecutor, he won convictions in more than 100 felony cases. Elected to Congress in 1976, he serves on the House Armed Services Committee and Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee. He is currently the Republican candidate for Senator from Virginia. In 1978, Trible was named by the Virginia Jaycees as Outstanding Young Man of Virginia. He and his wife Rosemary have 2 children.

C. Daniel Shelburne '36
Retired senior vice president of Wachovia Bank and Trust Company of North Carolina
Shelburne is the chairman of the Board's Spiritual Life Committee, a subcommittee of the Student Affairs Committee. He continued his education at the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania and the Graduate School of Banking at Rutgers University. He is a member of St. Michael's Episcopal Church in Raleigh, past chairman of Wake County Salvation Army Board, past vice president and treasurer of the Wake County United Way. He is director of the Business Development Corporation of North Carolina. He and his wife Edith Maynard McDonell have four children.

James L. Trinkle '50
President of C. W. Francis and Sons, Inc., Realtors
A graduate of the University of Virginia Law School, Trinkle has served as president of the General Alumni Associations of Hampden-Sydney College and the University of Virginia, on the Board of Directors for the Central YMCA, on the Board of Trustees for the United Way of Roanoke Valley, and a Campaign Chairman for the American Cancer Society. The Roanoke native is a member of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, the American Bar Association, and the Board of Directors of Peoples Federal Savings and Loan Association. Trinkle currently serves on the Board's Executive Committee, Development Committee, and Energy Committee.

TRUSTEE PROFILES

Richard Morton Venable, Jr. '50
President, Trojan Steel Company
Venable currently sits on the Development Committee. A native of Charleston, West Virginia, Mr. Venable is an elder in the First Presbyterian Church, an active member of the Rotary Club, and a member of the Charleston area Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. James C. Wheat
Mrs. Wheat, who earned the B.S. degree from Longwood College in 1943, is a former member of Hampden-Sydney's Parents Council. She has done additional study at Hollins College, where she worked as an assistant in the biology department. A former member of the board of the Children's Theatre, Mrs. Wheat is married to James C. Wheat, Jr., chairman of the board of Wheat, First Securities, Inc. Their son, James C. Wheat III, graduated from Hampden-Sydney in 1975. She serves on the Board's Student Affairs Committee.

Lewis G. Chewning '27
Retired President, Virginia Folding Box Company
Chewning, an emeritus trustee, served as the Board's chairman from 1958 to 1968. He has also served on the boards of the Virginia Foundation for Independent Colleges, the Richmond Foundation, and Richmond Memorial Hospital. He graduated from Hampden-Sydney and the University of Richmond; he received an honorary Doctor of Laws Degree from Hampden-Sydney in 1968. He and his wife, Mary, have one daughter.

S. Douglas Fleet
Fleet, an emeritus trustee, was chairman of the Board from 1968 to 1980. Before his retirement he served as executive vice president of Albemarle Paper Manufacturing Company and vice president of Ethyl Corporation, both of Richmond. An alumnus of the College of William and Mary, Fleet has served in numerous civic organizations; one of particular interest to him is the Historic Richmond Foundation, through which he played a significant part in the resurgence of historic Church Hill. Fleet and his wife, Helen, have one daughter.

A Good Deal

How three alumni helped themselves and the College, too.

A loyal son of Hampden-Sydney wants to help his alma mater. He has some assets that have increased a great deal in value, but which are providing a poor return on investment. He'd like to give them to the College, but realizes he will still have a tax bill to pay Uncle Sam if he sells them. At the same time he wants to retain the income even though the return isn't what it should be. Make the College a handsome gift, increase his income, avoid capital gains taxes, and receive a charitable income tax deduction? Sound impossible? Bill Johns, Dick Michaux, and Bob Lawson all did just that with the encouragement of U.S. tax law.

Dr. William A. Johns '30 had 1330 shares of stock in May of 1979 which had a total market value of $38,238. The stock was paying a dividend of $656 per year or a return of 1.7%. Bill gave the stock to Hampden-Sydney through our Pooled Income Fund. The Pooled Income Fund paid Bill an 8.2% return in 1981 — considerably above the 1.7% he had been receiving. In addition, he avoided paying capital gains taxes and was able to claim a $13,850 charitable deduction on his income taxes.

"I am retired on a fixed income, and this gift increases my income at the same time that it helps the College."

Dr. William A. Johns '30

Dr. Johns (right) with President Bunting.

"It was good for both the College and me. My only regret is that I didn't have more to give at the time but I hope to do more of this in the future."

Dr. Richard A. Michaux '34

Dr. Richard A. Michaux '34 owned 443 shares of Brenco, Inc. stock which last year was worth $5,371 but paid dividends at the rate of 4.5%. Dick, too, gave his stock to the College's Pooled Income Fund and increased his income to 8.2%. No capital gains taxes were paid and he was able to claim a charitable deduction of $1,876.

Robert W. Lawson, Jr. '30 contributed to the Pooled Income Fund in December of 1980 and was also able to claim a tax deduction in addition to receiving an income for life.

All three will receive income from the Pooled Income for the rest of their lives. In addition, Bill Johns and Dick Michaux have arranged matters so that their wives continue to receive the income for the rest of their lives should their husbands die first. The assets in the fund then revert to the College after their deaths.

So, you see, it really can be done. The actual return rate from the Pooled Fund depends on its current earnings rate (trustee of the Fund is United Virginia Bank) and the amount of charitable tax deduction depends on the donor's age, sex, and whether or not an additional beneficiary is named.

If you'd like to know more about the Pooled Income Fund or other methods of deferred giving just write or call:

George M. Peters
Director of Capital Programs
Hampden-Sydney College
Hampden-Sydney, VA 23943

Where Football Is Still A Game

A bemused observer tastes the heady spectacle of a football crowd on the Hill.

by Jerry Lindquist

FAR FROM THE MADDING CROWD. A football Saturday. Trees, lots of trees. And green grass. Small stands below the press box, but most people sit on the bank. Children play on the track that surrounds the field. And dogs, quite a few dogs.

To enter you have a choice: climb over or duck under a rope. Conscience is your guide. It is all rather informal. And delightful.

"When I visited here for the first time, I thought, 'Wow! I didn't know a place like this existed any more'," says athletic director of 18 months Wil Chassey, a transplanted New Englander.

Alumni park their cars across the street, unfold chairs, open a pop-top can or two and enjoy. Fathers and friends come to the sideline during a game to tell some of the players hello.

And the players themselves. They don't have to be there. There are no athletic scholarships. This is NCAA Division III football. They're there strictly because they want to be there. Josiah Bunting III roams the sideline, mingling with the players, shouting encouragement mostly, living and, yes, dying a little bit, too. Bunting can be found there every Saturday when the Tigers of Hampden-Sydney play. He's the school's president.

Can you imagine Bear Bryant welcoming the Alabama president to the field, within earshot from kickoff to final gun? "I've never thought about it that way," Bunting says.

This is Hampden-Sydney, but it could be Anywhere, U.S.A. There are hundreds of Hampden-Sydneys where football is important but not that important. They want to win no less here, but the game is kept in perspective. There are no concrete monuments reaching to the sky, nobody worshipping the god football, no wall-to-wall hook-em-horns or Boomer Sooners. Traffic jams? Get serious. Drive in and drive out. No sweat.

In his welcoming message to Tiger fans on Page 1 of the game program, Bunting writes, " ... At Hampden-Sydney the young men who play intercollegiate football must be (1) intelligent and (2) amateurs — those who play because they love the game, not because it brings them athletic scholarships or (with rare exceptions) public glory. Yet neither restriction seems to hurt the quality of play ... (and) the autumn ambience of a Hampden-Sydney football Saturday is matchless."

Witness a mid-September day, 1981. Not a cloud in the sky. A ritual of fall being observed in unrivaled splendor. There are some spectators, maybe a couple of thousand (although that is generous perhaps), and not all their attention is focused on the game — H-SC versus Maryville. They are encouraged when the Tigers' Timmy Jones runs for three touchdowns. Mostly, they talk to each other, sip some brew (or harder stuff), and seem to be having a very good time.

"It's a social event, but don't think they don't care about winning. They do," says an alumnus, nodding towards the bank where the students (and their dates) have congregated, then adding, "Want a beer?" It's all so relaxing. A fun occasion. Bunting hitches his pants, bites his nails. "Go-o-o, Timmy! Whew!" He throws up his arms signaling touchdown, as Jones reaches the end zone.

Later, Bunting will appear concerned. Almost grim. The Tigers are losing. They will not win this day. Bunting removes his sweater, wraps and ties it around his middle, and rolls up his sleeves. He is not fond of big-time football. He questions the mentality of it all. He tells a story about visiting a friend in Mississippi, and late one night the friend says he wants to show Bunting something special. "I thought he was taking me to William Faulkner's house," Bunting says. "No, he takes me to the fooball stadium."

Jerry Lindquist is a staff writer for the Richmond Times-Dispatch, where this article originally appeared. It is reprinted, slightly abridged, with permission.

Bunting wants to understand. It isn't easy. If he ever became president of a major university, he could learn to live with athletics in the extreme, Bunting says, "but I would tell them I expected everyone to get a degree." Surely, he jests. There would be protests. Get their degrees? How naive. Bunting laughs. "I would wait them out," he says.

So this is where all the small football players went. The Tigers are not very big. Coach Stokeley Fulton has approximately 80 in uniform, approximately one-ninth of the student body. Fulton has been weaving magic at his alma mater for 22 years. He has taken the Tigers to three post-season bowl games. Fulton has become as much a father figure as he is a coach.

It is late afternoon, in the locker room which, by any standards, will never be described as plush. It is utilitarian. There is a place for each player to hang his clothes. He has a towel. There is soap and hot water. The H-SC players are not feeling very good. Maryville has won 35-21, throwing five touchdown passes. At game's end, Fulton herded his players behind closed doors and gave them a good, old-fashioned tongue-lashing. He told them they didn't give their best effort.

Today's athlete is used to coaches assaulting his eardrums. He usually reacts passively, muttering under his breath, "That blankety-blank SOB." Or worse. For Fulton, this outburst was not in character. The players responded all right. When the doors opened, and they filed out, many had tears in their eyes.

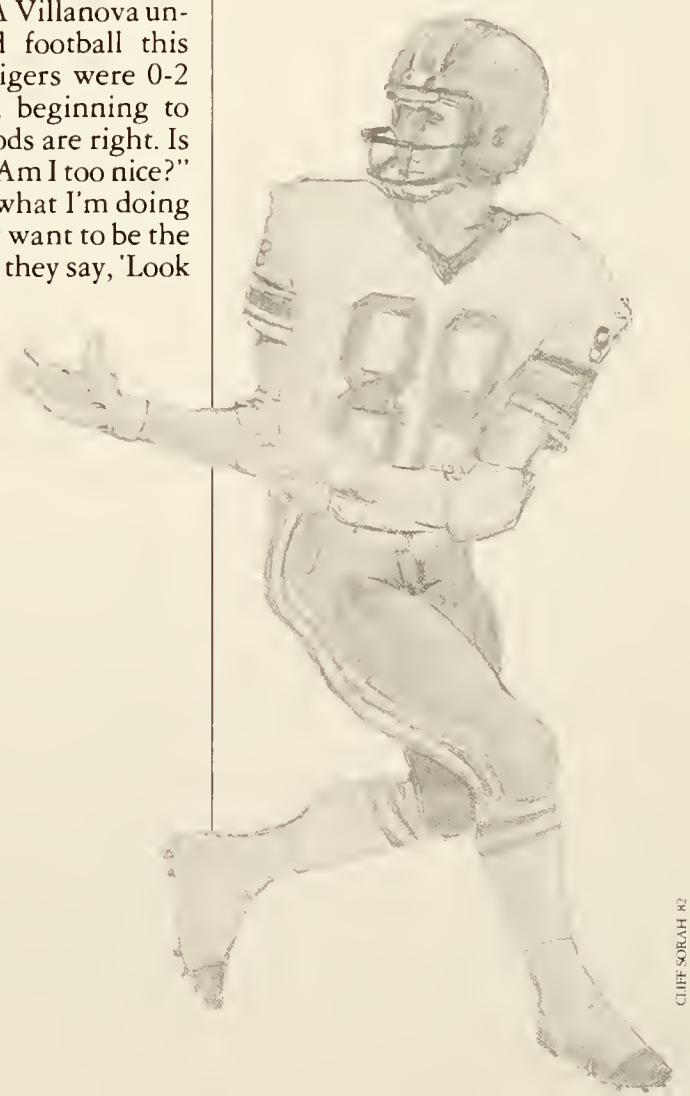
"No matter what I say they know my love for them is still there. I have always put them, and the school, ahead of myself," Fulton says. His voice cracks, eyes water, his ruddy features turning crimson. It is a poignant moment. How many coaches would allow you to see them thus? So many try to act so tough, so disciplined, so infallible ... so phony. Here is a man acting like a man.

"When you've been at it as long as I have, you die a little easier," Fulton says. "A loss in itself is bad but to know the misery they (his players) go through gets to me as much as anything." He questions his methods. After all these years, he wonders out loud if he's overstayed his welcome.

Scheduling is getting tougher. To fill out his '81 lineup, Fulton accepted a season-opener with West Chester State which was available because Division I-A Villanova unexpectedly dropped football this spring. Now the Tigers were 0-2 going on 0-3. "I'm beginning to wonder if my methods are right. Is there another way? Am I too nice?" Fulton says. "I feel what I'm doing is right (but) I don't want to be the kind of coach where they say, 'Look at him. He's been here so long, he can't get it out of the boys any more.'"

The visitor leaves. Fulton remains seated, swatting flies. He has allowed an outsider (albeit an old friend) to get close to him. Believe me, sports fans, that doesn't happen very often in athletics. The trees are hiding the sun now. Outside, the quiet is broken by the blaring of a record player. A fraternity house party is under way. A solitary figure practices his serves on the tennis court.

It has been a memorable afternoon. A slice of life you don't get following quote-big time sports-unquote. I have to tell you, this is what football was meant to be.



CLIFF SORAH '82

Hampden-Sydney, 1990

Orderliness, improvement, and the best we can do for every student who enrolls—these are the goals of the ten-year plan for the College.

By Daniel P. Poteet II, Provost and Dean of the Faculty

LAST WINTER, COLLEGE OFFICIALS DEVELOPED AN operating budget for the current year that stressed substantial increases in faculty and staff salaries, significantly larger maintenance expenditures, and greater allocations for financial aid. As school opened in late August, fraternity leaders together with faculty and administrators met in a series of workshops that offered first steps toward responsible fraternity governance and toward solving serious financial and physical problems. At about the same time, freshmen and their advisors met for the first of several sessions that focused not only on course selection, but on all the essential elements of College life. (These freshmen come in large numbers from the Southeast as well as from Virginia. Their high school records and aptitude scores are strong. Their class is the largest ever, and comes from an applicant pool some 20% larger than the pool a year earlier.) In mid-November, the Trustees will review plans, through the design phase, for a new domitory. The proposed building—really a complex of buildings— offers several configurations of student housing, faculty residences, and seminar, social, and meeting facilities.

Taken one at a time, despite the dramatic importance of a proposed dormitory, these several phenomena would seem ordinary in the life of a college. As a group, however, they have a common ancestry in the College's plan for the years ahead, and offer first returns on our effort to take reasonable control of the future.

Why, one might reasonably ask, this new concern for the future when everything seems to be going so well in the present? It is true that alumni and friends know the outward signs of renewed vigor at the College; students see the College as a place of daily pleasures and concerns, whereby the next paper or exam or social event is paramount; faculty and administrators work from one class, or day, or meeting, to the next, and have one eye on the semester and the other on the year. Yet the College itself, whatever its short-run outward signs and internal workings may suggest, lives not only through exams and days and years, but through decades and centuries. Its nature at any moment, and its quality, are the accumulated consequence of years of decisions and actions and events and of long response to external as well as local conditions.

Budgets, fraternity life, the shape of a freshman class, advising, and dormitories may once have had little to do with one another. They now have much to do with a document titled Hampden-Sydney College, 1981-1991: Needs, Aspirations, Priorities. (Its more concise nickname is "The Plan for the Eighties.") In 1978, the trustees called for the development of this ten-year plan, which would link the major decisions of the present decade in some comprehensive and coordinated way, and whose successful implementation would lead both to general orderliness and to qualitative improvement.

At the same time, there were concerns: a small applicant pool, an underpaid and professionally isolated faculty, a substantial accumulated operating deficit, and menacing economic and demographic trends—inflation was increasing, the projected applicant pool was decreasing.

There were constraints: a felt, and expensive, need for the preservation of Hampden-Sydney's history and tradition; expensive but vital smallness; major deferred maintenance.

There were assumptions: inflation continuing through the decade, at an annual 8% rate; endowment growth that could match inflation and a yield of six to seven percent for operating funds; improvement as a result of "small, or at least undramatic" steps whose cumulative ten-year impact would be dramatic.

Areas viewed against the background of these concerns, constraints, and assumptions were academic life, student life, admissions, physical facilities, management, and finance. Trustees, administrators, faculty, students, alumni, and friends participated in the review and worked out a plan that is at once basic, viable, and flexible. It identifies the bare needs of the College, the hopes that go beyond bare need, and the costs and priorities for both—all subject to review and revision as circumstance and better ideas may dictate. It attempts to outline what Hampden-Sydney can and should do—the things that make sense for this College—in order both to develop and to realize potential. The general approach is to describe and to build on present strengths and to anticipate dangers—and in both areas to distinguish between what is real and enduring and what is tangential and passing. The trustees approved the completed planning effort in the fall of 1981.

AS MIGHT BE EXPECTED, the intensity of need, the ability to prove the wisdom of a particular solution or recommendation, and the width of the gap between present conditions and aspirations, vary from area to area. No one knows, for example, what a faculty member "should" earn, or how large "exactly" a faculty should be for a given number of students. Yet we do know that our faculty have lost ground to inflation at a faster rate than other white collar workers, that schools with which we compare ourselves academically have higher salary scales, that a few of our departments do not have sufficient staff for basic subject coverage, and that one department—fine arts—has only two-thirds of its authorized complement. Thus, the Plan offers minimum recommendations for 80th-percentile salary scales and a 12-to-1 student-faculty ratio.

Although some data exist, no one knows the precise correlation between particular student life efforts and particular consequences. Yet we do know that students resist channeling in specific directions, and we know that our students, as a general rule, have little inclination to service; they are inclined to leave the campus on weekends. Without doing away with human nature the plan proposes a stronger chaplaincy program and direct efforts at connecting things that are fun with things that are intellectual and useful, and at increased variety and frequency of student activities.

In the area of admissions, physical plant, and finance, the situation is more concrete, even measurable. For the next fifteen years percentage declines in the number of Virginia high school graduates will range from seven (1988) to twenty-six (1994) from the number in 1981; national declines will range from thirteen to twenty-six percent, and from four to thirteen percent in the southeast. The first-rate public colleges in Virginia will cost half as much as Hampden-Sydney. We must necessarily, therefore, work on recruiting students from outside Virginia, as well as from within the state, with professionally produced massive and—again—expensive direct mail admissions campaigns, primarily in the southeast, our most promising source of new students.

We will, during the next ten years, build a new dormitory and renovate old ones—notably Venable and Cushing Halls—for the sake of civilization, efficiency, and amenity, and in an effort to do away with the apparently wide-spread idea that dormitories are mere sleeping places, emphasizing instead their nature as centers of nucleic communities and intellectual and social growth. We will turn Morton and Bagby Halls into cheerful and efficient structures. We will improve the kitchen and dining spaces in the Commons. And we will provide suitable space for the fine arts. All these are basic needs, with a price tag of some $15,000,000.

Financial operation and conception will protect the College against casual decline and accidental disaster. We know, on the basis of planning models and projections, that current revenue and expenditure trends, coupled with new operating needs, would produce substantial deficits ten years from now. Thus, tuition, annual giving, and endowment use and size must rise steadily at a rate that is pegged to the College's planned program of changes and improvements, and not solely as a response to inflation and ad hoc cost impositions. And for those years (most of them) when money will be tight, priorities must be known—and acted upon.

THE HAMPDEN-SYDNEY that emerges in 1990 as a consequence of decisions within the context of this Plan—or in conscious departure from certain of its aspects—can hardly be laid out now in full detail, but the general aim and method are known. In the words of

> ADOPTION OF THE PLAN FOR THE EIGHTIES MAY HAVE BEEN THE SINGLE MOST IMPORTANT DECISION THE BOARD OF THE COLLEGE HAS EVER MADE.
>
> —W. Sydnor Settle '55
> Chairman of the Board of Trustees

the Plan itself: "What we should do is strengthen those things that collectively distinguish Hampden-Sydney from almost all other places: our (potential) sense of community; our great beauty and sense of tradition; our enthusiasm for teaching and for showing students how people lead good lives. We will not dash off in search of a new identity; we will not seek a highly visible, marketable angle.... The point of our mission then—as now—will be to do the very best by whoever happens to enroll. We will not try to manipulate our uniqueness; we will trust that to our own pattern, composed of things we do in common with other people and the things we do differently, or more wisely. This will continue to make Hampden-Sydney...the right place for particular good people to spend four years."

Budgets developed according to salary, financial aid, and maintenance priorities; fraternity members and College employees who accept mutual responsibility for solving common problems; advisors and students who work out a common approach to college life; a dorm that brings faculty and students together for recreation, study, and shelter—these are first steps toward a future Hampden-Sydney that is built on the best of the present.

On the Hill

National rankings for both the Annual Fund and the lacrosse team, and other notes.

Annual Fund Beats Princeton in '82

Increased volunteer participation and just plain, good hard work pushed Hampden-Sydney's Annual Alumni Fund to unprecedented heights for the fourth year in a row in 1981-82. The Annual Alumni telethon, chaired by Hal McVey '57, a member of McGuire, Woods, & Battle law firm in Richmond, received a total of 2,270 pledges for $308,340 for its fall affair in Richmond. But, by the year's end, the total pledges were 2,814 for a dollar figure of $440,105. Those figures add up to 55.3% alumni participation. Tim Butler '62, this year's chairman for the Alumni Fund, said "It's truly amazing how our alumns feel about their College; it's almost a chain reaction...you get more and more people talking and the next thing you know we've got a landslide!" McVey said simply, "We've surely beat all of our Virginia competition in terms of participation, and that just goes to show you what type of people make up Hampden-Sydney. By everyone's standards, we should be ranked among the top 10-15 colleges in the country in alumni support for the Annual Fund."

From the Palmetto Club in South Carolina, whose chairman Bob Hassold was proud to announce 100% participation among his member-body, a strong challenge has been issued to all other Alumni Clubs. Says Hassold, "If one club down here in South Carolina can get all of its members to give to Hampden-Sydney, why can't all the other clubs do the same? At least all of the Virginia Clubs should be able to contribute 100%."

Pete Leggett '68, of Lynchburg, Virginia, wishes to remind alumni everywhere that Hampden-Sydney's Alumni Campaign theme for 1981-82 was "Princeton in '82." Princeton University had a 1980-81 alumni percentage record of 54%, which put them in the top .5% of all colleges and universities in America in annual giving. "We figured that whatever Princeton could do, we could do. So, this year we went out to beat them and I'll be darned if we didn't." Princeton reported in at 54.9% as it closed it's fiscal year in July, a full half-point behind—at a level where half a point means a lot. Dartmouth and Williams now rank as the top in the world of annual giving and, Leggett urges, "We'll need more and more alumni support like this last year to catch those top schools. But, 'Princeton in '82' assured me that there's nothing wrong with 'Dartmouth in '90.' With the alumni we have now, I can't envision us any less than number one."

From Atkinson Hall, President Josiah Bunting III remarked, "It's truly outstanding that our alumni support, love, and believe in this College in such a meaningful way. The 55.3% level is an indication of the integrity of our alumni as they realize the need to sustain superlative private education. The achievements of Hampden-Sydney in the future are directly attributible to the loyalty and support of her present alumni constituency, a group with which I am honored to be associated." Bunting also praised J. Bolling Lewis III '81 for his part as the Director of Annual Giving. Lewis, who left in May to assume a position at Wachovia Bank and Trust, Raleigh, North Carolina, managed in his short tenure at Hampden-Sydney College to build the largest fund year ever.

Trustee Peter Leggett '68, chairman of the Board's Development Committee, announced the successful completion of the "Beat Princeton in '82" campaign.

JAMES B O'HARA '76

Gibson (11) eyes the goal.

National Ranking, All-American Honors Spark Lacrosse

The success of the 1982 Tiger lacrosse team is no secret to the Hampden-Sydney community, but it was most assuredly a welcome surprise. The Tiger stickmen were expected to be tough in 1982, thanks to the recruiting job of Head Coach Bill Reid, but very few people thought they could be tough enough to gain a berth in the NCAA Division III playoffs or to be nationally ranked. But tough enough they were. Under the leadership on the field of All-American senior attackman John Gibson and All-American Defenseman Ted Chambers and on the sidelines by the coaching staff of Head Lacrosse Coach Bill Reid and Assistant Coach Bill Glennon, the Tigers played on to become the eighth-ranked Division III lacrosse team in the nation. The Heroes Association, a prestigious lacrosse club, later named Reid the NCAA Division III Lacrosse Coach of the the Year for this achievement.

JAMES B O'HARA '76

Chambers (19) chases an opponent.

Gibson, a native of Norfolk, lettered in lacrosse all of his four years at Hampden-Sydney and served as team captain his senior year. A listing of player statistics would not do justice to Gibson's impressive abilities, for they are best summarized by recalling his second-half play in the match against St. John's College: with only four minutes remaining in the game, which the Tigers were losing 8-2, it looked as though Hampden-Sydney had fallen before the Division I powerhouse. Gibson, however, did not think the game was over. In those four minutes, he scored seven goals, giving the College a 9-8 win over St. John's. It is for this and other such games that Gibson was named to the Division III All-American team and the All-South squad.

The defensive team of the Tigers was led on the field by Ted Chambers. Chambers, a returning player to the team, was responsible on the field for covering the opposing team's top attackman; he succeeded in keeping the other team's best player off the offense. A native of Baltimore, Chambers was an essential element in the team's receiving a bid to the playoffs, for the bid came in recognition of the team's defensive record.

When Bill Reid came to Hampden-Sydney in 1978, lacrosse at the College was nothing more than a club sport. After an 8-8 1981 season in Division III play, Reid has made the team into a nationally-ranked Division III team, ending the 1982 season with an impressive 12-4 record. Reid led his team last spring to New York to enter the national playoffs but found it hard getting by the team's first match-up, the number-one team, Hobart. The Tigers did not lose without a fight, however, for our team scored more points against Hobart than had any other Division III team that year.

On October 14, the College Flag, designed and presented by Dr. Shelton H. Short III '48, celebrates its tenth anniversary. It flies daily before the Museum in Hampden-Sydney.

John Terry Dies at 81

John Terry died on August 2, 1982, aged 81 years. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Selma Terry of Farmville; a son, John Terry, Jr., of Silver Spring, Maryland; and a daughter, Mrs. Thelma P. Jones of Washington, D.C. For 45 years he had been an employee of the College and friend of hundreds of students. His work in the athletic department is best summarized in the words of Bobby G. Saylor, former tennis coach and athletic center director: "John was one of the hardest working men I ever knew, who was always cheerful with a smile and kind word for everyone. He was truly a gentleman."

NANCY ANDREWS

These bare facts do not indicate that with the death of John Terry, an era ended at Hampden-Sydney. His brother, Arthur Freeland Terry, familiarly known as Pat, worked at the college for 42 years. His parents, Arthur and Agnes Terry, were also well known and respected by residents of the Hill. Again, facts do not tell the whole story. Members of the Terry family were known for their industry and faithfulness to their jobs and for their particular concern for the elderly, sick and those who lived alone.

Soyars Scholarship Fund Established by Philip Morris

Philip Morris, Incorporated, has given $100,000 to endow at Hampden-Sydney a scholarship fund honoring Benjamin A. Soyars '40 "for his long and dedicated service to the Philip Morris Company and to the College." The income from the grant will be used to provide scholarships for worthy young Virginians who choose to attend Hampden-Sydney. A Soyars Scholar will be designated in each entering class.

Ben Soyars, who at the time of his death in December 1981 was a trustee of the College and president of Philip Morris' Tobacco Technologies Division, came to Hampden-Sydney on a scholarship. "It is singularly apt," pointed out President Josiah Bunting III, "that Philip Morris should have chosen this way to memorialize Ben Soyars at his alma mater; these scholarships will enable other students to follow Ben's example, which succeeding generations must never be allowed to forget."

Ted Offterdinger '74 Honored by Fund

In memory of Theodore G. Offterdinger, Jr. '74, and Virginia C. Williamson, who were killed in an automobile accident on their way to Homecoming in October 1981, a scholarship fund has been established by their friends and relatives.

Offterdinger, the son of Mr. Theodore G. Offterdinger '41 of Lynchburg, was a regional sales manager with the N. B. Handy Company and a member of the First Presbyterian Church in Raleigh, North Carolina. A Baker Scholar at Hampden-Sydney, Ted Offterdinger was an outstanding athlete, excelling both in football and track; he capped his career by election to Phi Beta Kappa in recognition of his scholastic attainment.

Faculty Forum: New Professors

This fall brought not only the largest freshman class in Hampden-Sydney to campus, but it also brought eight new members to the faculty. New this year are Roger M. Barrus, Victor N. Cabas, Jr., Gerald J. Carney, Mark M. J. Morris, Charles K. Pilkington, Dean A. Ward, Mark F. Williams, and Richard Palmer.

Barrus, a Ph.D. candidate from Harvard University, joins the political science department of the College, where he will teach courses in international relations and comparative political systems.

Cabas comes to Hampden-Sydney as a visiting assistant professor of English. An assistant professor of English at the University of Virginia before coming to Hampden-Sydney, Cabas holds the Ph.D. from the State University of New York and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

Assistant professor of religion Carney holds the Ph.D. degree from Fordham University; he will teach classes in Eastern religions, his specialty. Carney was a visiting assistant professor of Bible and religion at Hampden-Sydney from 1977-1978.

Mark Morris, a 1976 graduate of Hampden-Sydney, returns to the Hill as lecturer in chemistry. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

Charles Pilkington joins the history department at Hampden-Sydney as a lecturer in history. He is a Ph.D. candidate at the University of Virginia and concentrated his studies on Southern history.

Dean Ward, lecturer in Rhetoric, comes from the University of Virginia, where he is working toward the Ph.D. He has taught at the Heritage Christian School.

Mark F. Williams is expecting his Ph.D. from the University of Illinois, where he has taught since 1977. Williams is interested in ancient philosophy, palaeography, and textual criticism.

Summer Research Grants

Dr. Jorge Silveira, professor of Spanish, was awarded a Mednick Memorial Committee Grant for summer research; the Mednick Grants are administered by the Virginia Foundation for Independent Colleges. Silveira went to Madrid, Spain, to do research on his project, entitled "Proof of Authorship of the Historia del Abencerraje y la Hermosa Jarifa."

Other summer research grants were given by the College to the following professors for the project which appears after each name:

Jim Angresano (Economics): Research Travel in Sweden
Jim Arieti (Classics): Ancient Humanism
Gerry Bryce (Mathematics): Further Instruction in Computer Science
Ned Crawley (English): Work on book on Emerson, Thoreau, Whitman, and Melville
Alan Farrell (French): Parataxis and Interconnection in Louis Ferdinand Céline's Casse-pipe, Mort à crédit, and Voyage au bout de la nuit
Stan Gemborys (Biology): Land-Use History and Present Vegetation of Eaton, New Hampshire
Joe Goldberg (Political Science): The Necessity to Defend One's Own: The Dilemma of Liberal Democracy
Ron Heinemann (History): Interdisciplinary Approaches to the Study of History
Paul Jagasich (German): Summer Work at Middlebury
Robb Koether (Mathematics): Algebraic Numbers Theory
Amos Lee Laine (History): Rastell and Ralegh Revisited
Don Ortner (Psychology): The Aspirations of Black Citizens of Farmville, Virginia
David Pelland (Mathematics): Study of Mathematical Models for Population Dynamics
Bill Porterfield (Chemistry): Completing a Text for a One-Semester Course in Advanced Inorganic Chemistry
Brian Schrag (Philosophy): Adam Smith's The Moral Sentiments and The Wealth of Nations
Bill Shear (Biology): Purchase of research-quality stereomicroscope
Herb Sipe (Chemistry): Electron-Spin-Resonance Studies of Organosilicon Analogues of Pharmaceuticalactive Molecules
Al Smith (Chemistry): Preparation of Lab Manual for Analytical-Organic Laboratory
Wayne Tucker (Classics): Bene et pudice educta est: The "Good" Girl in Roman Comedy
Mike Wilson (Spanish): The Hispanic Immigrant: Personal Histories

Professional Activities

Dr. Gerald Bryce, assistant professor of mathematics, was chairman of the session on "The First Computer Science Course" at the Conference of the Ohio Section, Mathematical Association of America, at Denison University, in June.

Drs. Michael Wilson and Allan Farrell of the department of Modern Languages sponsored a Symposium at the College in honor of the seven-hundredth anniversary of the birth of Don Juan Manuel, a Spanish writer of the thirteenth century. Many eminent literary historians came to the campus to read papers on the literature of Don Juan and his contemporaries.

Dr. William Shear was the host at the College to the national meeting in July of the American Arachnological Society. Shear also edits the Society's newsletter, American Arachnology.

Class Notes

News received before September 15, 1982.

1935

The Reverend WILLIAM F. JUNKIN, JR., retired last summer after a lifetime of service as a Presbyterian missionary to China and Taiwan. He and his wife Jessie now live in Montreat, North Carolina.

1940

WILLIAM H. FLANNAGAN, president of Roanoke Memorial Hospital, was recently chosen by the Roanoker Magazine as one of the twelve men who have had the most profound influence on the history of the city of Roanoke.

During his hospital presidency, he has helped to bring Roanoke into the forefront as a major medical center in the state. When Flannagan went to Roanoke in 1954, Roanoke Memorial, then known as Memorial and Crippled Children's Hospital, had 120 beds and 200 employees. Today it is the largest non-profit community hospital in the state of Virginia, with 2,015 employees, 675 beds, several new wings, a rehabilitation center, and several professional schools; it is generally recognized as one of the top fifty hospitals in the country.

Flannagan also pioneered an educational affiliation with the University of Virginia Medical School and he is now overseeing construction of a cardiac surgery unit which will be completed this year.

1942

Dr. JAMES E. COUSAR III, thoracic surgeon with a twenty-eight-year commitment to St. Vincent's Medical Center in Jacksonville, Florida, has been named president of the Medical Center's medical and dental staff. Cousar graduated from the Johns Hopkins University Medical School.

1943

The Reverend THOMAS C. CLAY has been honorably retired from Northminster Presbyterian Church, in Madison Heights; he is serving as interim pastor of West End Presbyterian Church in Roanoke.

1944

RICHARD F. DUNLAP, president of the Norfolk & Western Railway Company, has been elected to the board of directors of Dominion Bankshares Corporation.

1950

JAMES L. TRINKLE of Roanoke has been appointed by Governor Charles Robb to the Board of Visitors of the University of Virginia. Trinkle, who is also a trustee of Hampden-Sydney, has had several double duties like this before: many years ago, for about two months, he was president of the national alumni associations of both schools at the same time. He once rebuffed a skeptic, who had asked if he could truly serve God and Mammon at the same time: "It's like having two children — you love them both for different reasons." His service, he finds, on boards of such different institutions helps in his perspective on both.

1952

ROBERT W. HASSOLD represented Hampden-Sydney at the inauguration of President Ezell of Erskine College.

1954

BEN J. BOWERS has been named vice president and executive editor of the Greensboro Daily News and Record. Bowers began his newspaper career with the Farmville

Mail service in the South Carolina uplands being what it is, we received only this summer this picture of the August 1981 Palmetto Club meeting at the home of Bob Hassold '52. Alumni only, left to right, front row: Dave Bannon '77, Scott Day '66, Jeff Outen '80, Billy Blackford '79, Jim Cope '65; back row: Gil Soyers '60, Charles Johnson '26, Bud Wheatley '40, host Hassold, and Bill Tinlin '44.

Herald after serving two years in the Army. He joined the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot and Ledger-Star in 1963 and was the first editor of the Virginia Beach Beacon, one of the earliest and most successful zoned editions of a major metropolitan newspaper. He was managing editor of the Petersburg Progress Index from 1965 to 1968, when he became managing editor of the Record.

1956

ROBERT J. DENNIS of Grundy has been elected second vice president of the Independent Insurance Agents of Virginia; he owns the BuCoVa insurance agency in Grundy and the Huffman Agency in Richlands.

1959

BOBBY SAYLOR has taken a position as a math teacher and coach at the Fork Union Military Academy after working fourteen years with Hampden-Sydney College, where he had served as tennis coach, assistant football coach, and director of the athletic center. As tennis coach, he led the 1981 and 1982 teams to the championship of the Old Dominion Athletic Conference and to competition in the NCAA Division III National Championships.

DONALD P. WHITLEY has been named regional manager of Paine Webber. The firm, one of the nation's oldest and largest full-service securities firms, created the region which Whitley will head when its Eastern Division was expanded to consist of seven regions. In his new position, Whitley will continue managing the brokerage office in Richmond and will also direct the activities of seven branch offices in Virginia, Georgia, North Carolina, and South Carolina.

Whitley has nineteen years of experience in the securities business. He joined Paine Webber in 1978 as an investment executive and he was named branch manager of the Richmond office two years later.

1960

SILAS A. BARNES, JR., who owns the Crout Lumber Company of Crozet, Virginia, has been named director and vice president in the Virginia Lumber Manufacturing Association.

The Reverend E. DOUGLAS VAUGHAN, JR., has been transferred from St. Giles Presbyterian Church in Raleigh, North Carolina, to the First Presbyterian Church in Tyler, Texas.

1963

WILLIAM D. CASSIDY III has been appointed vice president of human resources with Warburg Paribas Becker-A. G. Becker, with responsibility for all the company's activity in that field. Before joining Becker, Cassidy was with International Telephone and Telegraph, most recently as director of

Bobby Saylor '59

Sidney Druen '64

personnel and industrial relations for the Industrial and Energy Group, the worldwide manufacturing arm of ITT.

NEIL YEARGRIN, a former manager of yarn manufacturing at Burlington Industries' Erwin plant, has been promoted to plant manager. Yeargrin joined Burlington in 1968 as a trainee at the plant in Ranlo, North Carolina, where he later served as superintendent. He also served as superintendent of yarn manufacturing at Stonewall, Mississippi, and was appointed manager of the Phenix plant in Kings Mountain in 1977. He was named to the post of manager of the Tullamore yarn manufacturing plant in Ireland in 1978 and served there until 1981, when be became yarn manufacturing manager at Erwin.

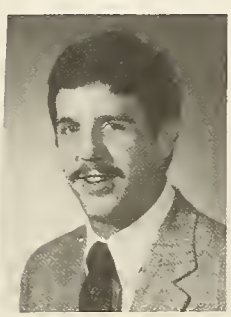
1964

W. SIDNEY DRUEN has been elected vice president and associate general counsel of the Nationwide Insurance Companies. Druen joined Nationwide's home office staff in Columbus in 1970 as an attorney. He was promoted to associate general counsel in 1974 and was elected assistant secretary of the Companies, a position he will continue to hold.

JOHN C. PARROT, account executive with Wheat, First Securities, has been designated a Certified Financial Planner by the College of Financial Planning, Denver, Colorado. Parrot received his master's degree from the University of Virginia. He was formerly a teacher at the Blue Ridge School and director of the Upper School of Forsyth Country Day School in Winston-Salem, North Carolina.

Conway Moncure '71

David Holt '78



1967

RICHARD B. MADDEN, manager of the corporate accounts group of Central Fidelity Bank in Richmond, has been named a senior vice president. Madden is responsible for management of the bank's relationship with national and regional commercial customers and with its correspondent bank network. He is also responsible for the delivery of bank services to the bank's statewide municipal customer base. Madden joined the bank eleven years ago.

1967

L. WHITE MATTHEWS III has been elected vice president and treasurer of the Union Pacific Corporation; he had been treasurer and chief accounting officer of the Missouri Pacific Corporation in St. Louis. Matthews, who holds degrees from the Darden School of Business at the University of Virginia and Harvard Business School, is a former trustee of Hampden-Sydney College.

1968

LE FRAZIER, former Director of Public Affairs and Research of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, has joined the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company in Richmond where he will sell life insurance and financial planning services.

1969

JACK FORBES has been named general manager of Letraset Canada Limited. In this position, he will be responsible for the three operating divisions of the Canadian subsidiaries of Letraset Limited. He and his family will reside in Toronto.

1970

Dr. VINCENT H. OBER, JR., has moved from Quantico, Virginia, to Bremerton Naval Hospital in Bremerton, Washington, where he joins the staff as instructor of Family Practice to graduate physicians. Dr. Ober, a commander in the Naval program, will be joined by his wife, Susan Davenport Ober, and their three children, Marianne, Peter, and Erin.

CHARLES D. ROBISON III has been named vice president of the Dominion National Bank of Tidewater.

1971

JOHN B. ADAMS, JR., has been named senior vice president in the account management division of the Martin Agency in Richmond. Adams joined the company in 1973.

E. CONWAY MONCURE, JR., has been named assistant vice president of Central Fidelity Bank in Richmond. Moncure received his LL.B. degree in 1975 from the T.C. Williams Law School and graduated from the National Graduate Trust School at Northwestern University. He joined Central Fidelity in January of this year in the estate and trust administration area of the trust department.

CARL B. TRAUGER is an administrative officer in the data processing division of Metropolitan Dade County, Florida.

1972

JOHN AUGUST (who has changed his name from Augustowski) is president of August Auromation, a software development service in Westboro, Massachusetts.

ANDREW D. BRIDGFORTH has been promoted to financial director of Asian and North Pacific operations of R.J. Reynolds Tobacco International. He was formerly financial controller at R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company operations in Malaysia. In his new assignment, he is responsible for all financial planning, analysis, control, and reporting in the Asian and North Pacific region, which includes Japan, Singapore, and Guam.

1973

BOB M. FARMER has been elected a trust officer by the Trust Company Bank of Atlanta. Farmer is a portfolio manager in the employee benefits area of the trust department.

HERBERT VALENTINE KELLY, JR., has become a member of the legal firm, Jones, Blechman, Woltz, and Kelly, P.C. in Newport News.

D. BRYAN POWELL III, who has been a Foreign Affairs Officer with the United States Department of State since 1979, was recently sworn in as a Foreign Service Officer with the State Department and will be posted to the Republic of Singapore.

1974

CHARLES T. CONKLING was named assistant vice president in the Community Banking Group at Union Trust Company of Baltimore, Maryland. Conkling was first employed by Union Trust in 1974 in the management development program. He has been assigned since then to the bank's branch system, where he currently is a manager at the Perry Hall office.

ROBERT CROWDER, an assistant administrator at Memorial Hospital in Danville, was appointed chairman of the business campaign for the Danville-Pittsylvania Division of the American Heart Association. In this position, Crowder coordinated the volunteers who called upon Danville area businesses seeking donations.

1975

ROBERT B. GRADE has joined the investment firm Ferris & Co., Inc., as an investment executive in the company's McLean office.

CHARLES E. HUNTER III is assistant vice president in charge of cash management at the First National Exchange Bank of Virginia in Roanoke.

1976

R. B. LEE CARTER has accepted a position with Trammell Crow Company in San Antonio, Texas. The company is a large real estate investment and development company with headquarters in Dallas.

Lt. A. MARK LEE is working as an attorney for the Naval Legal Service Office at the Charleston Naval Base in Charleston, South Carolina.

Dr. W. L. MONTAGUE, JR., is completing the first year specialty of orthopedic surgery at the University of Southern Alabama School of Medicine Hospital in Mobile.

ROBERT M. STEWART has been named assistant vice president in the Commercial Banking Group at Union Trust Company of Maryland. Since joining Union Trust in 1976 as a credit trainee, Stewart has been assigned to the bank's commercial lending area as a corporate lending officer. Currently he services a portfolio in the National Accounts Section.

1977

MARK W. GOODIN has been appointed press secretary for U.S. Senator Strom Thurmond of South Carolina.

LEONARD N. LOVE has been promoted to loan officer in the Hertford office of the Bank of North Carolina.

E. JUDSON McADAMS is with Spalding and Slye Real Estate Brokerage in Charlotte, North Carolina, where he is a specialist in office leasing.

DAVID H. MICHAL has been awarded a house officer appointment in internal medicine at the Eugene Talmadge Memorial Hospital in Augusta, Georgia.

1978

STOKELY GRAY CALDWELL, JR., formerly a correspondent bank officer for the First National Exchange Bank of Virginia has moved to the First National Bank of Boston, where he will serve as correspondent bank officer.

PHILIP G. DAVIS III has been promoted to bank card officer by the North Carolina National Bank in Greensboro. During his service with the bank, Davis has served as a salvage collector, unit manager, and collection supervisor.

DAVID P. HOLT has recently graduated from an intensive thirty-week program in which he was trained to become a sales representative for Burroughs Wellcome Company. Holt, a graduate of the Medical College of Virginia School of Pharmacy, will be working out of Bethesda, Maryland.

FRANK CONRAD MARTIN is working for Martin Research Associates, Inc. in Roanoke.

1979

JAMES C. BUTLER is in branch management at Colonial American National Bank in Roanoke.

JOHN G. EAGAN, JR., was promoted to banking officer of Wachovia Bank and Trust Company in April 1982. . Eagan joined Wachovia as a retail banking trainee in July 1979 and later became main office branch manager of the Rocky Mount branch in January 1982.

F. MARCUS FARISS has been elected banking officer at Wachovia Bank and Trust Company in Raleigh, North Carolina. He serves in the regional financial institutions section.

GREGORY WEST FELDMAN has been elected national accounts officer for the First National Exchange Bank of Virginia in Roanoke. He was elected a Jaycee's Outstanding Young Man of America for 1981.

VINCENT G. THOMAS, an account executive with Wheat, First Securities, Inc., a regional brokerage and financial services firm, has transferred from the Virginia Beach office to the Charlotte office.

1980

MARK M. CLARK is employed by the Reliance Insurance Company of Atlanta, Georgia.

1982

TOMMY ADKINS: Corporate lending trainee, Wachovia Bank, Winston-Salem.

VIC ALPIZAR: Chemist, Smith-Kline Clinical Labs.

RYAN ANDERSON: Eastern Virginia Medical School.

DAVID ANSELL: United States Marine Corps.

JEFF BERRY: Eastern Virginia Medical School.

ED BLAKE: Central Fidelity Bank, Virginia Beach.

MIKE BREINER: Eastern Virginia Medical School.

ED BROOKS: Casualty-property insurance agent, Simpson-Coffield Associates.

CORY BUTLER: Dental school, Medical College of Virginia.

DANE BYERS: Master's program in educational counseling, University of Virginia.

KEITH CANNADY:Master's program in urban planning, Virginia Commonwealth University.

TONY CANODY: Computer programmer, B. F. Goodrich.

JEFF CARLUCCI: Graduate school in business.

BILL CARR: Retail banking, Wachovia Bank, Raleigh.

TED CHAMBERS: Master of science program in bio-engineering, University of Virginia.

MIKE CHEVALIER: Chief executive officer, South Boston Record.

JOHN CLARK: Industrial engineer, Spindale Mills, Inc., North Carolina.

ALEX CLARKE: Law school, University of Richmond.

JAY CONDREY: Manager, Cavalier Hotel.

PRATT COOK: Law school, University of Richmond.

BILL CRENSHAW: Management associate, United Virginia Bank.

MARK CRUISE: Boston School of Theology.

TED CUNNINGHAM: Underwriter, Aetna Insurance Company.

BRYAN DAVID: Paralegal school.

MARK DEATON: University of Virginia Medical School.

DAVE DONOVAN: Ph.D. program in physics, Penn State.

DOC DOUGHERTY: Master's program in sports administration, University of Massachusetts.

BILL EDMUNDS: Law school, University of Richmond.

NELSON FISHER: Law school, University of Richmond.

SCOTT FORE: administrator with Geophysical Service, a subsidiary of Texas Instruments specializing in oil exploration.

RICHARD GERLOFF: Family construction business.

SCOTT GILBRIDE: Master's program in accounting, Georgetown University.

JOHN O. GODDIN: United States Marine Corps.

SCOTT GOODMAN: Corporate lending, Chemical Bank, New York.

CURTIS GORDON: Law school, University of Richmond.

BRAD GRAY: Counseling program, University of Virginia.

BILL GREEN: Law school, University of Richmond.

J. B. GURLEY: Equitable Insurance-Realty, New York City Headquarters.

GIFF HAMPSHIRE: Law school.

CLAY HARRIS: Ph.D. program in French, University of Virginia.

RICK HARRIS: Assistant press secretary, Tony Guglielmo for Congress, Connecticut.

EDDIE HOOKER: Eastern Virginia Medical School.

KEVIN HUBBARD: Law school.

NEIL HUFFMAN: Chemical engineering, University of Virginia.

DAVE HUMMEL: Syracuse University.

WARREN HUNNICUTT: Insurance.

ROD HUNTER: Aide to Senator Warner.

ALAN JAMES: Science teacher, The Gilman School, Baltimore.

ALLYN JANNEY: Dental school, Medical College of Virginia.

GAVIN JEFFS: Sales, Colgate Palmolive.

JOHN JENKS: Rehabilitation counseling program, University of Virginia.

SANDY JORDAN: Petroleum land manager, Independent Associate with Total Power Corporation.

TIM LASS: Chemistry teacher, football & baseball coach, Southampton Academy.

BILL LECOMPTE: Financial analyst, LeCompte Financial.

RICHARD LEGGETT: University of Virginia Medical School.

LEW McCLUNG: Agent, Northampton Life Insurance.

TOM McCLUNG: Computer programmer, PRC, Washington, D.C.

BRYANT McGANN: Law school, University of Virginia.

RICK McGARRY: Medical school.

JIM McGEE: Princeton Theological Seminary.

CHUCK McPHILLIPS: Law school, University of Virginia.

VINCE MILAM: Management trainee, Best Products, Richmond.

TOM MILLER: Law school, University of Virginia.

LENNY MILLS: Ph.D. program in economics, Tulane University.

MIKE MOELLER: Ferguson Enterprises.

EMMETT MOORE: Financial Manager, Virginia Beach.

JIMMY MOORE: Southern States Cooperative.

JOE MORGAN: Ferguson Enterprises.

ROBBO NEWCOMB: New Zealand.

GARY NORCROSS: United States Air Force.

JON PACE: Director of Annual Giving, Hampden-Sydney College.

JON PANANAS: Restaurant manager.

JESSE PARK: Hospital worker.

TOM PEDLOW: Sales, Colgate-Palmolive.

KEVIN QUARLES: Law school, University of Richmond.

DAVID ROSS: Medical School of Virginia.

ROD RUFFIN was named this summer as a Governor's Fellow by Virginia Governor Charles Robb. He worked as an assistant in the office of the secretary of public safety. Ruffin, whose ambition is to become a public defender, is attending the University of Virginia Law School this fall.

RICK RUMMEL: Frito-Lay.

LINDSAY RUSSELL: Law school, University of Arkansas.

KENT SCHUSTER: Reynolds Metals.

KEN STAAB: Management Trainee, Wachovia Bank and Trust.

TOM STABEL: Ph.D. program in chemistry, North Carolina State University.

STEVE STACKHOUSE: Aide to Tony Guglielmo for Congress, Connecticut.

JEFF THOMAS: Associate programmer analyst, Planning Research Corporation, McLean.

RICK THOMAS: MBA, Wake Forest.

SEAN WALLACE: Law school, University of Maryland.

GLENN WATERS: Law school.

LARRY WESTERN: Ph.D. program in

ALUMNI PROFILE

George Martin '22

Medicine has changed a great deal in the last fifty-five years, and George Martin remembers almost every change. At 84, Martin is still pursuing the career he dreamed of as a seventh grader; he is a doctor.

Martin's medical career began after serving in World War I aboard the USS Virginia. Once discharged, Martin attended Hampden-Sydney and went on to the Richmond Medical College, graduating in 1926. In 1927, he opened his first office in Martinsburg.

Martin remembers vividly the days of house calls and no malpractice suits. He states with pride that the medical profession went from 1933 to 1960 without a single suit. Despite all of the changes, Martin has kept up.

"Medicine has changed a lot," he said, "Antibiotics revolutionized the practice of medicine in some ways."

"It's all improved, every branch of it," added Martin, noting that the major changes came after World Wars.

Martin's specialty was doing it all. "I did everything," Martin said. "If you referred someone they went to Baltimore or Washington. Now, 95 percent stay and see local specialists."

Martin keeps up with the ever-changing medical profession through his journals. He gets a stack of them every month. He quickly adds, however, that it is impossible to read everything he gets each month; he gets more than he has time to read.

"You couldn't read everything you got in a month," he states. "You couldn't do anything but read, no work."

Martin approaches medicine as more than a mere occupation; he is completely dedicated to his patients. His only daughter, Elizabeth Ballou Martin, remembers sometimes asking her mother if she had a father, for Martin would sometimes work three straight days without sleep. His daughter added that Martin did not care if his patients had a penny or were millionaires; he treated them all the same.

In his home of forty years are many gifts that former patients have given to Martin; they are his treasures.

"The patients are very nice to you," he said. "They get to be like family."

freshwater biology, V.P.I. & S.U.

JIMMY WILLIFORD: Wachovia Bank and Trust.

RICHARD WRIGHT: Law school, Florida State University.

Please contact CC&CP and let us know what you are doing.

Mr. Tony Campbell
Center for Counseling & Career Planning
Hampden-Sydney College
Hampden-Sydney, VA 23901
804-223-4381, ext. 105

ADVANCED STUDIES, DEGREES, & HONORS

1922

Dr. W. NORMAN COOK was honored at a program held at the Ginter Park Presbyterian Church on April 28, 1982.

1926

The late Dr. BERNARD E. BAIN was honored on May 21, 1982, when a bas relief portrait of him was unveiled at the Presbyterian Home in Lynchburg, where Bain had been superintendent for twenty-six years.

1938

JOSEPH A. HAZLEGROVE, SR., was named the Outstanding Virginia Forage Producer at the recent Southern Piedmont Forage Conference. Hazlegrove, owner of Forkland Farms in Cumberland County, was honored for his exceptional forage program and efficient farming practices.

1959

Dr. J. ROBERT HIPPENSTEELE, professor of biology at Illinois Wesleyan University, has been named the 1982-83 Century Cub honoree. The award honors a faculty member of the university chosen from recommendations of a student-faculty committee.

A research scientist in addition to being a professor, Hippensteele conducted a three-year study of microcirculation (1969-1972) funded by a grant from the National Institute of Health. The Indiana Heart Association awarded him a grant in 1969 for a one-year project to study the effect of exercise on available extravascular sodium exchange volume in skeletal muscle.

For two summers, 1976-1977, he conducted a research project at Wesleyan to identify the microvessels providing tissue-level redistribution to flow within skeletal muscle. That program was funded by a grant from the Research Corporation of New York.

While on sabbatical leave from Wesleyan during the 1981-1982 school year, he completed a paper, aided by a National Science Foundation grant, on the sensitivity of small blood vessels located in skeletal muscle to oxygen and carbon dioxide. The ultimate aim of this paper is to offer more understanding of hypertension in humans.

1945

Dr. SHELTON H. SHORT III participated last summer in a six-week program at Oxford University on "British Foreign Policy in the Twentieth Century."

1966

JAMES E. PAYNE and his wife Linda Payne, associate professors of physics at South Carolina State College, participated in the Summer Faculty Fellowship Program at NASA's George C. Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Alabama. Mr. Payne studied superconductivity with an eye to testing Einstein's theory of general relativity, while Mrs. Payne performed experiments on optical contacting of quartz surfaces. The Fellowship Program, sponsored by NASA and the American Society for Engineering Education, exposes fellows to challenging research experiments, experienced physicists, and the latest developments in science and technology.

1969

J. GORDON COLEMAN, JR., received the Ed.D. from the University of Virginia in May 1982. He is now an assistant professor of library science at Baylor University in Waco, Texas.

1970

RANDY HALLMAN placed second in the Virginia Press Association's contest for sports feature writing. Hallman works for the Richmond News Leader.

CHARLES V. O. HUGHES III received his M.D. degree from the Medical College of Virginia on May 15, 1982. At MCV he was elected to the Medical Honor Society.

1972

WALTER W. MILLER III is studying the Japanese language in Kyoto, where he is a free-lance journalist.

1973

THOMAS CROCKETT BOWEN III received the LL.B. degree from the T.C. Williams School of Law on May, 9, 1982. Bowen is the son of T. C. BOWEN, JR. '42.

1974

BRUCE D. JEFFERS was awarded the doctor of osteopathy degree by the Osteopathic Medical Center of Philadelphia on June 6, 1982. He also holds the master of science degree from Georgetown University.

STEPHEN WILEY MAPP received the M.B.A. degree from the University of Richmond on August 19, 1981.

1975

ASHTON D. MITCHELL III, vice president of Julius Straus and Sons in Richmond, received the "Mr. Chairman Award" of the Independent Insurance Agents of Virginia in recognition of his service on the IIAV legislative committee for the 1981-82 fiscal year.

MICHAEL ROWLAND was awarded the doctor of ministry degree by Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary in May 1982; his academic work centered upon the historical attitudes of the Church toward alcoholics. Rowland is serving as the pastor of Bethpeor Baptist Church in Pamplin, and as a licensed agent for the National Home Life Assurance Company.

1977

WILLIAM C. FERGUSON was recently awarded the Senior Real Property Appraiser designation by the board of governors of the International Society of Real Estate Appraisers.

1978

PAUL G. BROWN graduated in May 1982 from the Medical College of Virginia. He is doing his residency in Roanoke.

MICHAEL NERNEY graduated in May from Eastern Virginia Medical School.

DAVID HEATH GATES, EDWARD VINCENT O'HANLAN, WILLIAM FRANCIS SEYMOUR IV, and LAWRENCE HUNTER WOODWARD, JR., all received the LL.B. degree from the T.C. Williams School of Law in May 1982.

THOMAS CARTER WADELL received the M.B.A. degree from the University of Richmond on August 1982.

THOMAS C. WALL has received special recognition for scholastic achievement at the Bowman Gray School of Medicine at Wake Forest University. Wall, who graduated from medical school this past May, was awarded the Upjohn Achievement Award at commencement. The award is presented to a senior who, in the opinion of his classmates, "possesses those qualities which enable him to become the complete physician." Wall was also elected into Alpha Omega Alpha, the National Medical Honor Society.

Wall will take residency training in internal medicine at the Duke University Medical Center in Durham.

1979

MICHAEL T. BENNETT graduated from the University of Virginia Law School in May 1982. He is now associated with the firm of Casson, Calligaro & Mutryn; he and his wife Beth live in McLean.

BENJAMIN ELLIOT BONDURANT received the LL.B. degree from the T.C. Williams School of Law in May.

JOSEPH A. C. WADSWORTH III received the master of divinity degree from Andover-Newton Theological School on May 24, 1982; he was ordained on May 30. He will serve the Plainfield Community Baptist Church in Plainfield, New Hampshire.

1980

DAVID E. NEWTON received the master's degree in biochemistry from the graduate school of the Medical College of Virginia in August, and is enrolled this fall in the School of Medicine.

BRIAN K. WITT is pursuing the master's degree in health administration at the graduate school of the Medical College of Virginia. He has been employed for the past two years as a financial counselor at Lynchburg General-Marshall Lodge Hospital in Lynchburg.

1981

JEAN CHIOTTI is attending the American Graduate School of International Management in Glendale, Arizona.

CHARLES JERVEY is studying at Radford University towards a master's degree in industrial and organizational psychology.

CRAIG VRANIAN is studying at the Medical College of Virginia.

The Alumni Association invites all alumni, parents, and friends on a once-in-a-lifetime H-SC experience!

A Fabulous Mid-Winter Holiday — Aboard the S.S. Norway

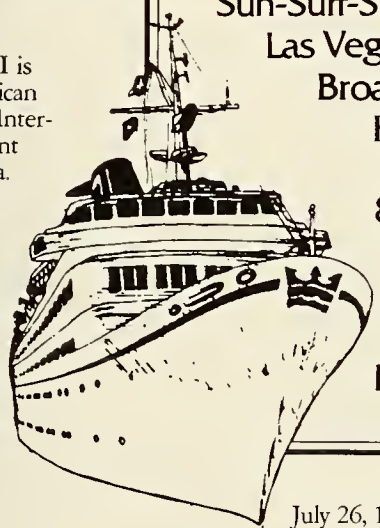
Jan. 22-29, 1983

Join the Tigers on the Open Sea!

Cruise the Caribbean!

Miami to Nassau, St. Thomas, and Hampden-Sydney's Own Out-Island

Sun-Surf-Stars—
Las Vegas Revue and Broadway Show
H-SC Cocktail Party
8 Meals a Day
More!



For Details Contact:
John Waters
Alumni Office
Hampden-Sydney, VA
23943

Reserve Early — Space is Limited

Staff

ANITA GARLAND, associate dean of admissions, received the M.B.A. from Virginia Commonwealth University in August 1982.

MARGARET WARREN SWARTZ, former alumni secretary, received the LL.B. degree from the T.C. Williams Law School in May 1982.

MARRIAGES & ANNIVERSARIES

1929

Mr. and Mrs. PAUL R. SHIFLET celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in May 1982 in Waynesboro, Virginia.

1932

The Reverend JAMES M. NcNAIR married Dorothy McClung Bolick on August 8, 1981, in the Montvale Presbyterian Church in Montvale, North Carolina.

1965

DOUGLAS KNOX was married to Marcy Buffington in Frederick, Maryland, on July 26, 1981 in the rose garden of Prospect Hall. DANIEL E. ROGERS II '65 and his wife Martha attended the wedding. The couple lives in Denver, where Knox is inhouse counsel with Jones Intercable, television manager and sponsor of publicly-offered limited partnerships in television systems cable.

CLYDE A. SMITH was married to Cathy Elaine Albrecht on December 27, 1981, at the Beckley Presbyterian Church in Beckley, West Virginia. Smith is an attorney in Beckley.

1975

GEORGE P. MASON, JR., was married to Gerlinde Edwards on August 9, 1980, at the Union Thelogical Seminary Chapel in Richmond. They live in New Orleans.

CARL EDWARD EASON, JR., was married to Katherine Crist Wetterer on June 12, 1982, in Huntington, N.Y. J. STANTON PIERCE '76 was a member of the wedding party. The couple lives in Virginia Beach, where Eason is a partner in the law firm of Pretlow, Pretlow and Moore, P.C., in Suffolk.

1976

Dr. WILLIAM LYNWOOD MONTAGUE, JR. married Joyce Hare Conrad in Alexander City, Alabama, on November 27, 1981.

1977

CHARLES B. EFIRD married Frances H. Ditto on August 1, 1981, at the First Presbyterian Church in Greensboro, North Carolina. They are living in Blacksburg, where Efird teaches Special Education classes in the Dublin Elementary School.

1978

STOKELY GRAY CALDWELL, JR., married Julia Lea Dalhouse of Roanoke on June 5, 1982. STEVE G. GREEN '78 was a member of the wedding party.

1980

MARK M. CLARK married Mary Elizabeth Smoak in September, 1981. The couple resides in Atlanta, Georgia.

GEORGE ROBERT PREAS, JR., was married to Mary Tilton Rodenberg at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Alexandria on March 6, 1982. Preas had recently been commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Force, after completing officer training school. The couple live in Del Rio, Texas.

KEITH RANDALL TIGNOR was married to Donna Karen Bruce on August 21, 1982, in Newport News.

1981

ANDREW JESSE POLLOCK was married to Amy LuAnn Bathurst on June 19, 1982, in Clarksville.

WARREN ARTHUR QUINN married Elizabeth Anne Schumacher on April 3, 1982, in the chapel of Sweet Briar College.

1982

B. VINCE MILAM was married to Kathy Agnew on August 21, 1982, in Emporia.

KENNETH EDWARD STAAB was married to Cheryl Lynn Perry on July 31, 1982, in Chapel Hill, North Carolina.

BIRTHS

1968

To Mr. and Mrs. HORATIO A. E. BIGELOW, twins Margaret Hollinsworth Bigelow and William McAllister Bigelow, on April 10, 1982, in Richmond.

To Mr. and Mrs. WALTER GIVENS, a daughter, and second child, Dana Louise Givens, on March 4, 1982.

1970

To Mr. and Mrs. CHARLES D. ROBISON, a daughter and second child, Katherine Bell Robison, on March 12, 1982. Their son, Charles D. Robison IV, was born on March 6, 1979.

1971

To Mr. and Mrs. KENNETH D. SHICK, a son, Matthew Kenneth Shick, on March 6, 1982.

To Dr. and Mrs. RUSSEL HARDEN, a daughter, Ann Sydney Harden, on January 31, 1982.

1972

To Dr. and Mrs. CHRISTOPHER F. JAMES, a first child, Katina Anne James, on March 3, 1982, in Gainesville, Florida, where James is assistant professor of anesthesiology at the University of Florida College of Medicine.

1974

To T. DOUGLASS JONES III, and his wife Susan Anderson Estes Jones, a daughter, Allison Estes Jones, on May 13, 1982, in Wilson, North Carolina, where Jones is a partner in the law firm Carr, Gibbins, Cozart and Jones. He graduated in 1978 from the University of North Carolina Law School.

To Mr. and Mrs. FRANK M. RAWLS, a son and firstborn, Matthew Christopher Rawls, on January 19, 1982. Rawls is an attorney in Suffolk.

1975

To Mr. and Mrs. CHARLES E. HUNTER III, a son, Charles Evart Hunter IV.

1976

To Lt. and Mrs. A. MARK LEE, a daughter, Marianne Palmer Lee, on February 22, 1982, in Charleston, South Carolina.

1977

To Mr. and Mrs. EDWARD JUDSON McADAMS, JR., a son on January 7, 1982.

1978

To Mr. and Mrs. FRANK C. MARTIN III, a daughter, Mary Catharine Martin, on June 13, 1982.

1979

To Mr. and Mrs. JOSEPH PETER MARCHETTI, JR., a daughter, Sarah Brandon Marchetti, on November 23, 1981, in Richmond.

1982

To Mr. and Mrs. MICHAEL ROBERT CHEVALIER, a daughter and firstborn, Monica Janée Chevalier, on May 14, 1982.

Faculty

To Dr. and Mrs. JAMES A. ARIETI (he is associate professor of classics) a daughter and second child, Ruth Sophia Arieti, on July 12, 1982.

On Friday, April 30, 1982, the Class of 1936 held its 46th reunion on the campus. The evening began with a reception in the Parents and Friends Lounge of Venable Hall; this was followed by dinner in the Heritage Room of the Library. Bill Formwalt, class president and reunion chairman, presided at the dinner; most of those present were called upon for brief remarks. After-dinner entertainment was provided by the Hampden-Sydney Noteables, the College's talented choral group, who were warmly received by the reunion guests. Present were Stuart Barrell, Arthur and Lois Carver, John and Evelyn East, John and Peggy Eure, Noel and Cotton Fallwell, Bill Formwalt, Speedy (E. Claybrook) and Mary Owen Griffith, Jimmy Hancock, Billy and Beth Hill, Ivan Hoy, Gus and Busy Mayes, Speed (William T.) and Kathleen McChesney, Lewis and Alyce Roach, D. Mott Robertson, and O. B. and Madeleine Watson, Tom '23 and Betty Gilmer, Taylor '39 and Marie Reveley, Joe '35 and Banna Price Trotter, Mrs. P. T. Atkinson, George (Director of Capital Programs) and Kitty Peters, and John ('58) and Sally Waters.

DEATHS

1924

BENJAMIN S. MORGAN, JR., died in Richmond on July 8, 1982. He had taught for twenty-six years, at St. Christopher's School in Richmond, where he had been head of the history department, principal of the Middle School, and assistant to the headmaster. He held advanced degrees from Syracuse University and the West Virginia School of Law.

RICHARD LEE SAGER, 79, died on March 29, 1982. Sager served as headmaster of Montgomery Bell Academy from 1944 to 1957. Sager was former president of both the Midsouth and Southern Association of Independent Schools.

1926

JOHN DOUGLAS FRY, 76, died on August 19, 1982, in Richmond. A graduate of the University of Virginia Law School and a member of the Bar of Virginia, Alabama, and Louisiana, he was retired vice president of the Virginia Mutual Life Insurance Company. He was the father of JOHN D. FRY, JR. '72.

CHASE STUART WHEATLEY, JR., a former member of the House of Delegates, died on January 30, 1982, aged seventy-six. Wheatley was past president of the Danville Bar Association and member of the Executive Committee of the Virginia Bar Association from 1958 to 1961.

1927

WILLIAM CARR HAGAN of Kingsport, Tennessee, died on July 3, 1982.

1928

Lieutenant Colonel JOSEPH EDWARD COX, JR., died on August 13, 1982, in Richmond. He was a retired Army officer.

1930

GEORGE H. WOODWORTH died on March 10, 1982, in Export, Pennsylvania.

1932

Dr. JOSEPH KENNETH BRADFORD died on May 9, 1982, in New Orleans; he was 71. He had served on the staff of the Ochser Clinic for thirty years and had been president of its medical staff and head of its department of pulmonary medicine. He was a graduate of the University of Virginia Medical School and the University of Rochester, where he was affiliated with Nu Sigma Nu medical fraternity. Bradford was an associate professor of medicine at Tulane University and the author of many articles on lung diseases; he had been president of the Louisiana Tuberculosis Association.

HUGH P. POWELL, JR., died in Petersburg on March 13, 1982; he was 71. He was the owner of Powell Brokerage Company in Petersburg and trustee president of the Boys' Home in Covington. On May 21, the board of directors of the Boys' Home voted to name the new counseling Center at the home in honor of "Billy" Powell. Powell had also served as a trustee of Hampden-Sydney College.

1934

The Reverend JOHN A. GRAY, retired Episcopal priest, died on August 18, 1982, in a boating accident near Jackson Hole, Wyoming, where he was on vacation.

1935

The Reverend CLARENCE ALE, 74, died of cancer in Salem on August 21, 1982. He was serving his third term as mayor of Buchanan, where he had retired after serving as a Presbyterian minister in Virginia for more than thirty-five years. Ale had also served as moderator of the Norfolk, Hanover, Montgomery, and Highland Presbyteries.

WALTER CAIN, JR., 70, died on June 3, 1982, in Parsippany, New Jersey. Cain, who was named the township's "Senior Citizen Volunteer of the Year" in 1979, was a retired customer service supervisor for Maislin Brothers Transport Ltd., of East Rutherford. He was founder of the Parsippany Senior Citizens Legislative Task Force, the executive producer of "Horizons Unlimited," a local cable television show catering to senior citizens, a founding member, warden, and lay reader of St. Gregory's Episcopal Church, and an active Mason.

ROBERT THRUSTON HUBARD, JR., professor emeritus of political science, died at the College on May 19, 1982; he was 67. After his graduation, summa cum laude, he attended the University of Virginia Law School; there he was elected a member of the Law Review, the Raven Society, and the Order of the Coif. He received his degree with highest honors in 1942 and practiced law in Buckingham County for four years. Appointed in 1946 to the faculty at Hampden-Sydney, as an instructor in English, Hubard augmented his legal training with graduate courses in political science; he was named assistant professor in that field in 1948 and full professor in 1973. Hubard was a member of the Virginia Bar and various other professional associations; he served as president of the Virginia Social Science Association in 1964 and helped found its journal in 1965.

1936

OSWALD BEECHMOND WATSON, JR., 67, died on August 10, 1982, in Bedford. He had been the owner and operator of Watson Pontiac for twenty-two years until his retirement. A native of Orange, he was a veteran of World War II and a member of Bedford Baptist Church.

1938

CLARENCE A. THOMPSON, 66, died in Petersburg on February 25, 1982. Colonel Thompson served with the 101st Airborne Division in World War II, parachuting into Normandy on D-Day. Later, he served as a battalion commander in Korea. Among his decorations are the Purple Heart, the Presidential Unit Citation with Oak Leaf Cluster, and the Legion of Merit.

Benjamin Soyars '40

1940

BENJAMIN A. SOYARS, an official of Philip Morris, Inc. died on February 11, 1982. Soyars was President of the Tobacco Technology Group, an operating unit of Philip Morris. Since joining Philip Morris in 1940, Soyars had served as Richmond Factories Manager and was appointed Vice President of Manufacturing in 1974.

A native of Richmond, he served as a member of the Virginia Business Council, the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, and a Trustee of Hampden-Sydney College. During World War II, he served as a captain in the European Theatre.

1943

Captain CHARLES W. ALE died on December 11, 1981 in Louisa.

1945

ROBERT A SMITH died in Farmville on June 3, 1982; he was 60. Smith was the founder and president of his own highway and bridge construction company, the Robert A. Smith Company, and of Central Contracting Company, of which he also served as chairman of the board. His company was the main contracting agent for several large projects throughout Virginia, including the Manchester and King Bridges in Richmond.

JAMES SPRUNT (D.D. '45) died in Staunton on December 21, 1981; he was 80. A graduate of Davidson College, Union Theological Seminary, and Princeton Seminary, he served churches in Chase City, Boydton, Norfolk, Staunton, Lynchburg, Chattanooga, and Raleigh. He was moderator of the Synod of the Virginias in 1968—a post, incidentally, which his wife held at the time of his death.

1950

JAMES FLEMING, 57, died in Richmond on June 30, 1982, while working at the Virginia Historical Society, where he had been a librarian for more than twenty-five years. Twice wounded while serving in the Army during World War II, he was a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, the Commonwealth Club, the Country Club of Virginia, and the Richmond German.

Dr. CHARLES G. REIGNER (LL.D. '56) died on June 10, 1982; he was 95. An active Presbyterian, poet, publisher, and author of numerous textbooks on business education, he endowed large collections of books at Hampden-Sydney, Princeton Theological Seminary, and at Union Theological Seminary. He had been the president of the H. M. Rowe Publishing Company in Baltimore. An active Mason and Kiwanian, he received in 1960 both the Award of Merit from the city of Baltimore and the Maryland Citizen of the Year award. His son PAUL REIGNER received the honorary doctor of divinity degree in 1959.

1972

The Reverend WILLIAM TORRANCE BUSH, 31, died on July 26, 1982, in Severna Park, Maryland; he had Hodgkins' disease. Bush had been an associate pastor of the Severna Park United Methodist Church since May 1981; before that he had served churches in Silver Spring, Rockville, and Burtonsville, Maryland.

1974

JOHN WALKER HOWARD III, 30, of Arlington, died on July 31, 1982, in Westmoreland County. He was employed by the Clarke and Samson Insurance Agency. He was the son of J. W. HOWARD, JR. '50 and the brother of WILLIAM HOWARD '77.

RAY ALLEN WALLACE died in Richmond on June 16, 1982; he was 27. A graduate of the Kensington Forest School, he attended Hampden-Sydney and graduated from Virginia Commonwealth University; he was an employee of the Ukrops Supermarkets in Richmond.

CONDOLENCES

1935

Suzanne Holden, the wife of THOMAS J. HOLDEN, JR., died in Virginia Beach on January 29, 1982. She had been feature editor of the Virginia Beach Beacon. The recipient of numerous awards for journalism, she was listed in Who's Who in America.

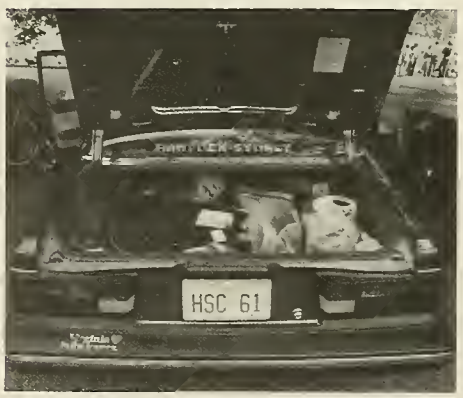
Parting Shots

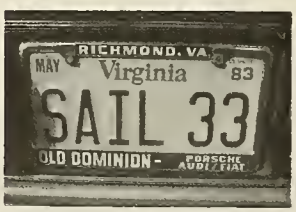
Vanity Fare

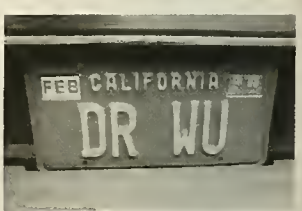
The new crop of students, arriving in the muggy dying days of August, brought with it not only a fresh infusion of life to the campus but also evidence of a new craze: what the Division of Motor Vehicles of the Commonwealth of Virginia calls in its own cheery way "Communi-Plates," but what everybody else knows as "vanity plates."

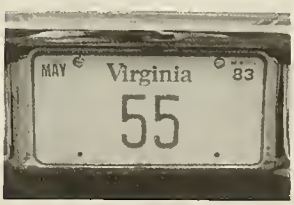
Intrigued by the phenomenon, we sent out a photographer, who came back with these pictures, among many many others. And he brought the startling news that the craze had in fact reached the campus before the students had returned: Dr. Graves H. Thompson, classicist and opera buff, had the monogram GHT HSC on his car and Dr. Tully Turney proclaimed his academic specialty, biology, with a fundamental DNA RNA.

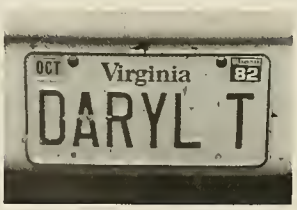
CHARLES E. PRITCHETT '82

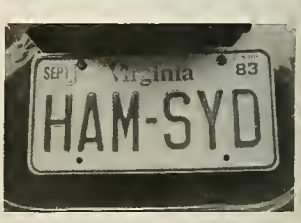












1983 FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

September	10	Denison	A	October	15	W & L	H
September	17	Maryville	H	October	22	Guilford	H
September	24	Catholic	A	October	29	Emory & Henry	A
October	1	Bridgewater	H	November	5	Sewanee	H
October	8	Gettysburg	A	November	12	Randolph-Macon	A

Parents Weekend: October 1 (Bridgewater)
Homecoming: November 5 (Sewanee)

1984 FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

September	8	West Chester	H	October	13	W & L	A
September	15	Maryville	A	October	20	Guilford	A
September	22	Catholic	H	October	27	Emory & Henry	H
September	29	Bridgewater	A	November	3	Sewanee	A
October	6	Gettysburg	H	November	10	Randolph-Macon	H

Parents Weekend: October 6 (Gettysburg)
Homecoming: October 27 (Emory & Henry)

MOVING?

Please mail this form (including the address label on its back) to:

THE Record Hampden-Sydney College
Hampden-Sydney, Virginia 23943

New Address: _____

_____

News? _____

The Year of the Tiger

1982 FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

September	11	Denison	Home
September	18	Maryville	Away
September	25	Guilford	Away
October	2	Bridgewater	Away
October	9	West Georgia	Away
October	16	Washington & Lee	Away
October	23	Gettysburg	Away
October	30	Emory & Henry (Homecoming)	Home
November	13	Randolph-Macon	Home

*November 6th Open

SOCCER 1982

September	10	Newport News—Apprentice	Away
September	18-19	Hampden-Sydney Tournament 1:00 p.m. and 3:00 p.m.	Home
September	22	Christopher Newport	Away
September	25	Davidson	Away
September	27	Maryville	Away
September	30	Averett	Home
October	2	Richmond	Away
October	3	Catholic	Away
October	9	Washington & Lee (Parents Weekend)	Home
October	12	Mary Washington	Home
October	16	Roanoke	Away
October	19	Virginia Wesleyan	Home
October	27	Lynchburg	Away
October	30	Eastern Mennonite	Home
November	4	Longwood	Home

1982-83 WRESTLING SCHEDULE

November	20	Takedown Tournament	Away
December	1	Washington & Lee	Away
December	7	Richmond	Home
January	14	Longwood	Away
January	15	Davidson	Home
January	19	Western Maryland	Home
January	22	Washington & Lee Tournament	Away
January	29	Washington & Lee, Davidson, Loyola	Away
February	5	Pfeiffer College/Catawba	Away
February	10	VMI Quad
February	12	Western Maryland/De. Valley	Away
February	19-20	Eastern Regional

1982-83 BASKETBALL SCHEDULE

November	23	Catholic	Hampden-Sydney
November	24	Virginia Wesleyan	Norfolk
November	26	Oglethorpe	Atlanta, Ga.
November	27	Georgia State	Atlanta, Ga.
November	30	Washington & Lee	Hampden-Sydney
December	4	Otterbein	Hampden-Sydney
December	7	Randolph-Macon	Hampden-Sydney
December	9	Bridgewater	Bridgewater
December	11	North Carolina at Greensboro	Hampden-Sydney
January	10	Maryville	Maryville, Tn.
January	11	Emory & Henry	Emory
January	15	Catholic	Washington, D.C.
January	18	Eastern Mennonite	Hampden-Sydney
January	20	Mary Washington	Hampden-Sydney
January	22	Roanoke	Salem
January	24	Randolph-Macon	Ashland
January	29	Washington & Lee	Lexington
February	1	Bridgewater	Hampden-Sydney
February	5	Roanoke	Hampden-Sydney
February	8	Lynchburg	Lynchburg
February	11	Emory & Henry	Hampden-Sydney
February	12	Maryville	Hampden-Sydney
February	14	Lynchburg	Hampden-Sydney
February	17	Eastern Mennonite	Harrisonburg
February	19	Newport News Apprentice	Hampden-Sydney
February	24-25-26	ODAC TOURNAMENT	Salem

1982 CROSS-COUNTRY SCHEDULE

September	18	Christopher Newport	Away
September	25	Bridgewater	Away
October	9	Eastern Mennonite	Away
October	16	Virginia State Championship	Away
October	21	Mary Washington	Away
October	23	Roanoke	Away
October	24	Virginia State Cross-Country Championship
November	6	ODAC Cross-Country Championship 11:00 a.m. at Washington & Lee	Away
November	13	NCAA Division III Regional at Lynchburg 10:30 a.m.	Away
November	21	NCAA Division III Nationals

THE Record
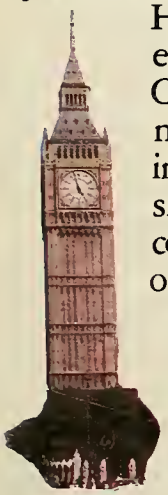
HAMPDEN-SYDNEY COLLEGE
HAMPDEN-SYDNEY, VIRGINIA 23943
Address Correction Requested
Return Postage Guaranteed

Non-Profit Org.
U. S. Postage
PAID
Permit No. 550
Lynchburg,
Virginia 24506

BRITAIN IN THE SPRING

APRIL 7-17, 1983

OH, TO BE IN ENGland, now that April's there! Stratford-on-Avon, haunted by the presence of William Shakespeare, charming Cotswold villages cuddled in verdure, Oxford with its rich heritage and hallowed halls, a private tour of Hampden House, ancestral home of John Hampden, one of Hampden-Sydney's eponymous heroes, Canterbury, famed medieval town, the incomparable countryside of Kent, and, of course, London, home of museums, markets, and sights varied enough to suit everyone's whim and fancy.



What more could one ask of a delightfully organized 11-day, 10-night excursion to Britain? Only perhaps a visit to Penshurst Place—Algernon Sydney's home—or Blenheim Palace; three days at leisure in London to explore all the city has to offer—including fantastic shopping in fashionable Knightsbridge, antique sleuthing in Portobello or Camden Passage, and taking in all that the galleries, museums, parks, and palaces of London have to offer.

Or perhaps you would like to spend your free time researching your family's genealogy. Whatever your interest, Britain is the place to whet it. And ours is the tour to take.

Hampden-Sydney's first-

John Hampden.

ever spring in Britain, escorted by Nat Acker, Vice President for Development, and Ted Moomaw '67, is being offered to you—Hampden-Sydney alumni and friends—for $1459, including air fare. Tour size must necessarily be limited so call or write for information soon.

John Waters, Alumni Office
Hampden-Sydney College
Hampden-Sydney, VA 23943

Algernon Sydney's Penshurst Place, in whose garden Queen Elizabeth I played as a child.

PHOTOGRAPHS BY GRAVES H. THOMPSON '27